The Citrus College Veterans Association took on the Veterans Administration and Citrus College and won a historic court decision Monday.

In a unique one-day court session, the V.A. was ordered to immediately pay at least 400 veterans at the college who had been denied their educational benefits since December as the result of an audit of the college's records.

According to Scott Tepper, of Century City, attorney for the students, this is the first time that there has been a restraining order against the government forcing it to immediately pay such funds.

In the hearing before federal Judge Irving Hill in the U.S. Central District Court in Los Angeles Monday, Citrus College was also ordered to give the veteran's association the complete list of all affected students by Friday.

Judge Hill also ordered the college to re-admit all veterans who had dropped out because of lack of funds, even though the semester is well underway.

"We first appeared before Judge Hill at 11 a.m. Monday," Larry Evans, spokesman for the Citrus College Veterans group said. "He read all the documents and ordered the VA, college officials and us to return to his court at 3 p.m."

Tepper said the class action suit by the Citrus College veterans not only demands that these students be paid immediately, but also affects students no longer in school.

"Checks are supposed to be sent to those no longer in school, but due for funds," Tepper said. This could affect several hundred veterans.

Tepper added that Citrus College veteran students who do not receive checks within a week to 10 days should call Evans.

The veterans organization is continuing to pursue the case and to seek public donations to do so.

Judge Hill also demanded that the V.A. set up a pre-determination hearing board so that any veteran student can be heard before his benefits are denied.

In case of Citrus College, 900 veterans were notified on Dec. 10 that their benefit checks were being withheld while the V.A. completed a 100 per cent audit of the college's records which had started in November.

The results of subsequent research by the college has proven that many of the penalized veterans did not, in fact, have anything wrong with their school programs.

It was determined that some others did have errors and still other students' records are still being studied.

Ford draws first blood in primary

FORD BREAKS ON TOP

Neil Tillotson, town moderator, right, and his son, Tom, town clerk, post totals shortly after midnight for the 25 voters of Dixville Notch, first to cast ballots in the New Hampshire primary. President Ford was easy winner in showdown with Ronald Reagan.

DIXVILLE NOTCH, N.H. (AP) — "Most Dixville voters like to keep it a secret," Dan Vashaw remarked as he strolled toward the voting booth. "That way we keep wondering who the others voted for. And for the most part nobody tells."

Vashaw, 22 and voting for the first time, gathered Monday night with two dozen neighbors in a second floor lounge at the Balsams resort hotel to cast the first votes in the year's first presidential primary.

At midnight — and outnumbered by news reporters — the people of Dixville Notch began voting. When it was over, President Ford had 11 votes to four for Republican challenger Ronald Reagan, and former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter led the Democratic field with six.

Democrats Birch Bayh of Indiana, Morris Udall of Arizona and Henry M. Jackson of Washington had one vote each. Former Berkeley, Calif., Mayor Wallace Johnson, a GOP vice presidential candidate, got a write-in vote for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Dixville Notch, nestled on the northern fringe of the White Mountains, has been voting first in the nation's quadrennial primary and general elections since 1960.

Brezhnev pledges to push detente, chastises Peking

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev pledged today to push detente forward "with redoubled energy," but said there are circles in the United States who oppose improvement in Soviet-American relations.

In a lengthy speech opening the Soviet Communist party's 25th congress, Brezhnev attacked the Chinese Communists and said Moscow would continue its aid to the leftist MPLA government in Angola as a matter of "revolutionary conscience."

Brezhnev took a swipe at foreign Communists who deviate from Marxist-Leninist principles, an evident reference to positions taken by the French and Italian Communist parties. He called such tendencies "opportunism" and declared the duty of Soviet Communists is to defend "proletarian internationalism."

The French Communist party just this month rejected the Communist doctrine of dictatorship of the proletariat. Like the Italian party, the French proposed participation in Western parliamentary government.

Because of his ideological differences with Moscow the French party leader, Georges Marchais, stayed away from the congress but sent a delegation of lesser officials.

The first two parts of Brezhnev's speech lasted 3½ hours, with a 40-minute intermission. A third section was delivered after a lunch break.

His speech also made a strong pitch for nuclear disarmament, listing achievement of a strategic arms limitation treaty with the United States among the "urgent tasks" ahead.

Bizarre suicide pact

PARIS (AP) — A consulting engineer who had lost most of his money and was being prosecuted for tax fraud killed five members of his family with their permission and then took his own life, police disclosed today.

"Call it a collective suicide or rather five 'murders by submission' with the killer taking his own life," a police spokesman said.

The engineer, Henri Valburg, 55, left a letter for a friend in which he said, "We've decided together to leave this society."

The bodies were discovered Monday night in the family home in Paris.

Valburg's sons, 23 and 15, his 74-year-old mother and a woman cousin were sitting in chairs in the living room, blindfolded and each with a single bullet into the heart from a carbine.

Valburg and his wife, Michele, 52, were lying on the double bed in their bedroom. She, too, had been shot in the heart, while her husband had been shot in the head. The rifle was alongside him.

The police believe the killings occurred Sunday.

A member of the family told a reporter, "Things had been going badly for the last three or four years. Henri had to close his office where he employed five or six people. He went into the cosmetics business, trying to sell beauty products by mail, but it didn't work. He could not accept this comedown, neither for himself, a person used to success, nor for his children, for whom he had great hopes.

"They were happy and they got along well, but they couldn't accept the idea of being out of money. Like their country house where they went every weekend. Even threatened with bankruptcy, Henri wouldn't sell it."

Went 'reluctantly'

Rabbi says State Dept. encouraged Nixon trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rabbi Baruch Korff said today that former President Richard M. Nixon went to China reluctantly but "at the encouragement of the State Department."

The rabbi, who has headed a drive that raised $280,000 for Nixon's legal fight to retain control of his presidential tapes and papers, said, "I don't think he really wanted to go now."

But Korff said the Chinese wanted Nixon's visit to coincide with the four-year anniversary of his door-opening trip to Peking as president and that the State Department viewed their invitation as a unique opportunity to learn about the political ferment in China.

The State Department has said assertions that it encouraged Nixon's present trip are "untrue."

At his news conference last week, President Ford said Nixon was given no special briefings for his trip. The President has said in an interview since that he will decide when Nixon returns whether to discuss the journey with him.

However, the secretary of state has said Nixon will report to the government and that "we will, of course, wish to learn of the nature of his discussions and impressions."

At a news conference, Korff said Nixon's health still is precarious and that "I don't think he can stand 30 minutes on his feet." Korff said the former president's blood pressure fluctuates and that he still is taking anticoagulant drugs to fight off a recurrence of phlebitis.

A medical corpsman with Nixon in Peking has said the former president must be on his feet for no longer than two hours at a time.

"The State Department urged him, encouraged him to make the trip at this time," the rabbi said. He would not say where he got his information, but said he talked with Nixon the day before the China trip was announced.

Asked why the State Department urged Nixon to go, Korff said the United States and other nations were caught off guard by internal developments in China, where Hua Kuo-feng was made acting premier to succeed the late Chou En-lai.

"Here is an opportunity to get the most intimate picture of what is going on there," Korff added. "You do not believe that the man who opened the door to China will be useful in making an assessment?"

Korff called the news conference in his hotel room to announce that he is resigning from the President Nixon Justice Fund because "I can no longer carry the burdens."

He said he is confident that $220,000 still needed to pay the bills for Nixon's fight for his papers and tapes will be raised by the end of March. A three-judge court recently ruled against the former president and the fight is being carried to the Supreme Court.

Korff, 61, said he will return to his home in Rehoboth, Mass.

Valley gets only drizzle

Two storm fronts passed over the Southland Monday, but brought only cloudy skies and a light drizzle to the valley.

The storms aparently spent themselves before reaching this area and dissipated altogether over the desert. The weatherman now predicts fair skies today and Wednesday with a continuation of the warm trend.

Monday's high of 75 will probably be repeated today and Wednesday with early morning temperatures in the 40s.

Ex-admiral in Va. Demo race

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Retired Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt, former chief of naval operations, today formally announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination to the U. S. Senate from Virginia.

If he wins the nomination, the 55-year-old Zumwalt is expected to oppose incumbent Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., a conservative independent, in the November general election this year.

Byrd has not yet announced his intention to seek re-election, but is expected to do so.

Scali hospitalized with bronchitis

PEKING (AP) — John Scali, former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, has been hospitalized in Peking with acute bronchitis, but his condition is not considered serious.

Scali, 57, is a representative of the American Broadcasting Corp. in the press corps covering former President Nixon's visit to China.

On Sunday evening he developed a fever and chest pains, causing concern because he underwent open heart surgery in 1973. His ailment was at first diagnosed as pneumonia, but later this was changed to acute bronchitis.

Machinegun purchase has Pentagon nervous

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is tiptoeing toward a decision on a relatively small machinegun purchase with potentially major foreign implications as well as political implications for President Ford.

Competing for selection are a gun made by the Maremont Corp., a U.S. firm in Maine, and a more costly weapon made in Belgium.

Belgium officials are applying pressure to the Pentagon to purchase the European weapon, recalling the Belgian agreement to buy U.S.-made fighter planes instead of aircraft made by France.

In Maine, where hundreds of jobs at Maremont's plant may hang in the balance, there are reports saying that a deal has been made with Belgium but that the announcement is being withheld because of fears it will hurt Ford's chances in today's presidential primary in New Hampshire.

Maine Gov. James Longley said Ford repeatedly had assured him there is no "secret deal" with Belgium.

Longley met with Ford on Monday and said after the meeting that he has "continued optimism" that Maremont will get the Army contract. He said he received assurances there would be discussions in the next two days between federal officials and Maremont officials.

The Maine congressional delegation already has been putting pressure on the Pentagon, and Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., has publicly insisted the Army buy the Maremont gun, which he says would cost about $800 less per unit than its Belgian competitor.

But defense sources say the Belgian MAG58 has shown itself to be far better than Maremont's M60 in tests conducted by the Army. They say the Belgian gun is likely to be chosen.

Still, the Army claims it has not yet made up its mind and that it is "still considering available options which would affect unit cost."

The competition grows out of the Army's need for a new machinegun to replace a tank weapon that has a tendency to jam frequently. Army officials said the present gun's unreliability was underscored when it was fired by Israeli soldiers during the 1973 Mideast war.

The program up for decision is a small one compared to many military weapon buys — about $30 million for 14,000 guns.

But in addition to domestic economics and political considerations, two important issues underlying the competition are the sale of U.S. F16 fighter planes to Belgium and the U.S. goal of standardizing weapons used by NATO countries.

Belgium played a pivotal role in last year's decision by four NATO countries to choose the F16 over France's Mirage F1.

As Belgium was pondering whether to go along with The Netherlands, Norway and Denmark and pick the F16, U.S. defense officials dangled before the Belgians the possibility the United States might buy the Belgian machinegun to help offset any loss of French arms orders.

Joh... seen key to nuclear initiative

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally says Nuclear Initiative backers will have to win the argument about its effect on employment in order to "prevail at the polls."

Dymally made this observation in a letter released Monday which he had sent to David Pesonan, chairman of California for Nuclear Safeguards.

"You will sometimes have to confront the employment issue before hostile audiences, and, in my opinion, you will have to win that side of the argument as well as the safety if you are ultimately to prevail at the polls," Dymally said in the letter.

Critics of the initiative, which bars further plant construction if the legislature fails to find present safeguards adequate, claim the measure would be disastrous for the economy.

In the letter Dymally also denied a charge that the state Commission for Economic Development is biased against passage of the nuclear power plants initiative.

Dymally, the commission chairman, made that comment in response to Pesonan's announced boycott of the commission's hearing Tuesday on the initiative's possible effect on employment.

Pesonan said his group would not participate because the hearings would not address the subject of nuclear power plant safety.

"A majority of the so-called public members of the commission are related to the atomic industry and are already clearly identified with the opposition to this proposition," Pesonan, a San Francisco lawyer, wrote Dymally last week.

"Their bias is reflected in the very announcement of the hearings which preclude any testimony about the safety of atomic power plants."

...working 'wake-a-thon'

100 youths to labor for ailing teenager

One hundred young people from the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints have scheduled a working "wake-a-thon" next weekend to benefit 15-year-old Kimberly Ayers.

They do not want to be paid for the work they do. Instead, they are seeking sponsors who will pay them by the hour for the number of hours they can stay awake and keep working.

The project was conceived Saturday when 16-year-old Patti Thomas, a sophomore at San Dimas High School and a member of the La Verne Ward of the church, read the Progress Bulletin story about Kimberly's plight.

Kimberly, a dystonia patient at Angel View Crippled Children's Hospital in Desert Hot Springs, was born in Pomona and attended Pomona schools before becoming ill when she was in fourth grade.

Doctors have told her mother her conditioning is worsening and that she needs surgery which could be performed by Dr. I. S. Cooper at St. Barnabas Hospital in Bronx, N.Y.

The mother, Mrs. Faye Barnes of 1015 E. Eighth St., Pomona, is unemployed and keeping herself and an 11-year-old daughter on unemployment benefits.

She estimates it would cost $10,000 to fly Kimberly to the New York hospital and pay her hospital and surgical costs. She is appealing for funds, which may be sent to Mrs. Faye Barns in care of Dr. Joseph Greengard, Angel View Crippled Children's Hospital, 12379 Miracle Hill Road, Desert Hot Springs.

"When I read the story I told my dad our family should contribute," said Patti. "Then I started thinking about what the kids could do. Sunday more of us talked about it and LuGene Bullock agreed to be our adviser and help us get organized."

Patti said residents willing to sponsor the young people by the hour are asked to call her at 599-5738 or Marlene Naes at 593-3906.

The young people involved in the benefit project live in Pomona, Claremont, San Dimas and La Verne.

Those serving on the committee with Patti and Marlene are Danny Huebsch, Jeanette Thomas, Dale Nelson, Mike McCook and Bart Lasake.

"We've got some work lined up already. We're going to clean up the church grounds and help at a couple of convalescent homes."

"Really, we'll have a lot of fun doing something useful and at the same time helping a person who needs help."

Meanwhile, Kimberly's father also joined in the appeal for help.

"I hope Kim gets everything she needs," said Gilvin Ayers Jr. of Chino.

Ayers, an employe at FMC Wayne sweeper plant in Pomona for 10 years, said he does not get to see the child often but has supported her since he and Mrs. Barnes were divorced when Kim was six months old.

"Kim lived with me and with my mother several months before she was admitted to Camarillo State Hospital in 1970," said Ayers.

For years he paid child support directly to Mrs. Barnes, he said. Since 1970 his payments have gone through courts to Los Angeles County. When Kimberly was admitted to Angel View, Ayers said, he was told by the district attorney that his payments were being directed to the hospital to help pay Kim's medical expenses.

Reagan far ahead

Ford skids among state GOP voters

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An opinion poll reported today that challenger Ronald Reagan in his home state has surged ahead of President Ford as the first choice among California Republican rank-and-file for the GOP presidential nomination.

The former California governor trailed Ford by nine percentage points last August, but the latest California Poll shows Reagan leading Ford by 17 percentage points.

A statewide sampling of 332 Republicans between Jan. 24 and Feb. 2 indicated that 54 per cent favored Reagan to 37 per cent for Ford. Nine per cent were undecided or favored another candidate.

When asked to choose between eight possible candidates, including Reagan and Ford, 48 per cent of the sample supported Reagan; 23 per cent, Ford.

"Ford's slide down the popularity scale during the past six months is most dramatic among Republicans who classify themselves as 'conservatives,'" said pollster Mervin Field. "This group makes up about two thirds of the state's Republican party.

"Ford still commands majority suport among the moderate to liberal segment of the party...but here, too, the President's suport is down from last August."

Dairymen want milk price hiked

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California dairymen want to boost the price of milk because they say the drought has pushed the cost of hay to $100 a ton in some areas.

State Agriculture Director L. T. Wallace has agreed to consider the request at a March 4 meeting with dairy spokesmen, Jay Goold of the League of California Milk Producers said Monday.

Goold said dairymen are getting an average of $9.60 per hundredweight for Class 1 milk under state-controlled prices that haven't been changed since April 1974.

Visitor to China will tell of trip

Author Lorenz Graham will tell about his journey to the People's Republic of China tonight at 7:30 at the Friends Meeting Hall, Claremont.

Graham and his wife Ruth visited mainland China in the fall of 1974 at the invitation of the government to share in the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the founding of the nation.

Their official host was the Chinese People's Association for Friendship with Foreign Countries.

Visits were arranged throughout the month they were in China to the University of Peking, the National Institute of Minorities, nurseries, kindergartens, elementary schools and middle schools.

The Grahams formerly taught in Africa.

Graham's talk is sponsored by the Pomona Valley U.S. China Friendship Association.

Musical group to present show at drive-in church

Truth, a touring musical company of 18 members, will presesent a program Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Valley Community Drive-in Church in San Dimas.

The event is sponsored by the Bonita Ministerial Fellowship of San Dimas and La Verne. The public is invited, and no tickets are necessary. A freewill offering will be received for the group.

Truth is presently conducting its fifth tour in North America. The group's contemporary Christian sound has been heard by millions coast to coast as it performs in conventions, colleges and churches. It has recorded nearly a dozen albums and is heard on radio and television.

Gordon Jenewein, son of the Rev. Hubert Jenewein of the San Dimas Wesleyan Church, is pianist for the group. Two other California youth, Art and Joleen Ortiz, are among the vocalists.

A follow-up phase of the concert will be a six-week home Bible study entitled "The Freedom To Live," also sponsored by the Bonita Ministerial Fellowship.

Liz, Burton may split up again

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor, remarried last year after a divorce, reportedly have agreed to separate again.

The hint of new trouble in the Burton marriage arose when it was learned that a party for Miss Taylor's 44th birthday, arranged for next Friday by producer Alexander Cohen, had been canceled.

"I'm sure that under the circumstances I wouldn't want to be having a party," Miss Taylor was quoted as telling Cohen by telephone early Monday. She also reportedly told him of the decision to separate.

"She said she wouldn't be here," Cohen said, "so there wasn't much point in having the party and I canceled it. Why the change in plans? She told me why, but I'm not going to say any more."

There also were reports that one or both of the Burtons had withdrawn as cohosts of the Tony awards television show April 18.

"I believe Richard still will be a host at the Tony awards as planned," Cohen was quoted as saying. "I didn't feel it was the time to ask Elizabeth whether she would still participate."

The Burtons first were married in 1964 after a romance that began in Rome, while they were making the picture "Cleopatra." It was her fifth marriage, his second.

They separated in 1973 and were divorced June 6, 1974. They were reconciled last September and remarried Oct. 10 in Botswana. Miss Taylor later wrote in a magazine article that their reconciliation was brought about in part by their fear that she had lung cancer — a fear that proved unfounded.

The Burton's attorney, Aaron Frosch, said Monday that the couple remained together in the same suite at the Lombardy Hotel here.

"Mrs. Burton is still at the hotel. I've had no instructions regarding their marriage," Frosch said, declining further comment.

Burton has been in New York appearing in the hit Broadway play, "Equus." He opens formally in the play Thursday night.

New York Post columnist Earl Wilson, on Monday, wrote, "The split follows reports that Miss Taylor had been having a secret romance in Switzerland with a Maltese advertising man, Peter Darmanin, 37, while Burton was here rehearsing."

When Miss Taylor arrived in New York last week to join Burton, Wilson said a photographer heard Burton remark to a security officer escorting her, "Do you want to be her lover this week?"

Wilson quoted the unnamed photographer as saying Burton also told Miss Taylor, "You're a woman in love."

Pomona ESAA project sending parents to show

Local parent volunteers who have helped with Pomona's Emergency School Aid Act (ESAA) project will attend a performance of "Raisin" at the Shubert Theater Wednesday. Principals of schools in the ESAA project will accompany the parents.

"Raisin" is an award-winning musical comedy based on the late Lorraine Hansberry's "A Raisin in the Sun." Parents will be bused to Century City from the Education Center at 6:30 p.m.

The theater party is sponsored by the ESAA project's Parent Involvement component. According to LaVonne Caldwell, parent involvement specialist, an important function of the project is to help parents become more closely involved with their children's education. Cultural activities such as theater parties provide learning experiences for parents and motivate them to attend school activities.

Transportation and tickets for some 100 parents will cost approximately $750. Costs are paid with ESAA funds.

Claremont council candidates to appear

The three candidates seeking election to the Claremont City Council will meet the public Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Claremont Public Library.

The event is being sponsored by the Claremont Coordinating Council and the League of Women Voters.

All three candidates are incumbents and unopposed in the March 2 election.

Frank Hungerford was elected to a full term four years ago, but has chosen to run for the remainder of Gene Block's term which expires in two years.

Eleanor Cohen was elected to fill an unexpired term two years ago, and wants a chance at a four-year stint.

Richard Newton was appointed to fill the vacancy on the council last summer when Block moved away. Newton is seeking a four-year term.

All three council members have expressed the hope that the Wednesday night meeting will provide them with the opportunity to share ideas with residents.

Public discussion will follow brief opening statements and responses to prepared League of Women Voters' questions.

Dial 884-POOL

No fooling on car pooling!

Want to form a car pool to conserve fuel and save money?

The California Department of Transportation has installed freeway signs giving the telephone number where persons may call to find help in forming carpools.

These signs read: "Car Pool Info 884-POOL." This number connects the caller to the offices of Inland Area Commuter Computer which provides a free service in matching people by where they live and work and the times they travel.

The carpool signs are located on the San Bernardino Freeway near the Ontario Motor Speedway, Pomona Freeway near Milliken Avenue, and on Interstate 15E between San Bernardino and Riverside.

The signs are unusual since the state limits freeway signs to safety and directional information needed by the motorists, said Lance Stalker, public information officer.

"In this case we think the importance of carpooling in terms of energy conservation and reducing air pollution is critical enough to warrant this kind of help."

Location of the signs won't conflict with other freeway signs, he added.

'The damage is done,' says bitter Bailey

WELCOME FOR NIXON

Former President Richard M. Nixon pats a child and speaks to its father while strolling on Peking's Tien Mien Square today. He was engulfed by throngs of Chinese.

Jury hears Patty take the 5th; focus now on her state of mind

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst is off the witness stand in her bank robbery trial after steadfastly refusing to answer prosecution questions despite a judge's order, and her attorneys are focusing now on psychiatric opinions about her state of mind.

After Miss Hearst invoked 5th Amendment protection against self-incrimination 42 times in front of her jurors Monday, chief defense attorney F. Lee Bailey declared bitterly, "The damage is done."

Bailey planned today to resume questioning Dr. L.J. West, a court-appointed psychiatrist who testified Monday that a "shattered" Miss Hearst showed signs of profound fear in the weeks after her Sept. 18 capture.

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. had fought against admission of the psychiatric testimony, but U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter ruled that Bailey could call to the stand three experts who have examined the 22-year-old defendant.

West was the first witness Bailey called Monday after Miss Hearst concluded her six days of testimony by defying Carter's order to answer questions relating to a year of her life on the run.

Carter said Miss Hearst had relinquished 5th Amendment protection when she took the witness stand in her own defense and warned her that he would cite her for contempt of court if she did not answer Browning's questions. But the judge did not pursue the matter when Bailey instructed his client to remain silent.

Miss Hearst, kidnaped by the Symbionese Liberation Army in February 1974, said sympathizers of the terrorist tribe would kill her and harm her family if she testified about the year. Her testimony could link revolutionaries to crimes she may have some knowledge of.

"I refuse to answer on the grounds that it may tend to incriminate me and cause extreme danger to myself and my family," she said initially. Her ramaining answers usually were simply, "I refuse to answer."

The prosecution contends that Miss Hearst freely remained with the depleted ranks of the SLA and helped plan bank robberies in Northern California from September 1974 until her arrest a year later.

Bailey contends Miss Hearst was still a hostage, her every act committed in fear for her life, and that any testimony about what the judge calls the "blank year" could trigger further indictments against her.

Bailey was clearly angered by Carter's decision to allow the government to probe into the 12-month period, leaving his client to risk the "adverse inference" of pleading the 5th Amendment in front of her jury.

It was the first time the jurors had heard Miss Hearst refuse to answer prosecution questions, although she had invoked the 5th Amendment last week with the jury absent.

Browning placed document after document before Miss Hearst and stood back as she refused to say whether she could identify them. The notebooks and papers, some in the defendant's handwriting, involved diagrams and information on a number of banks.

"The government got what it wanted," Bailey said bitterly outside court.

Nixon meets ordinary citizens on the streets of Peking; crowds friendly

PEKING (AP) — An old campaigner far from home pressed the flesh of the proletariat in Peking today.

Richard Nixon swept through the Gate of Heavenly Peace, shaking hands, tweaking babies and inviting one and all to come visit him in America.

"What do you want him to be when he grows up?" the former president asked a young man holding his son.

The father, clad in the usual Mao cap and padded jacket, answered solemnly, "We want him to answer to the call of Chairman Mao."

"Whatever they choose?" asked the old Commie-hunter.

"Whatever functions the party requires," said the father.

The scene in the vast Tien An Men Square outside the Forbidden City was a remarkable one for Peking, where visting foreigners seldom get to meet ordinary citizens in spontaneous groups. The smiling crowd appeared unrehearsed as it pushed close to the former president offering hands in welcome.

"I bring you wishes from America. I hope some day you'll come see us," Nixon told his new friends.

Many of the Chinese with whom he shook hands wished the former president good health. He appeared vigorous today, apparently revived by a once familiar sight grown recently scarce — a friendly crowd.

Earlier, the Nixons toured the Historical Revolutionary Museum where they marveled at rare archeological treasures thousands of years old.

At a glass case of prehistoric weapons, the conversation between Nixon and Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua got around to the Sino-Russian border clash of 1969.

"Who started it?" Nixon asked.

"Of course, they started it," Chiao said, smiling.

"Good answer, who won?"

"We just drove them away."

"Good diplomatic answer," said the former president.

At an exhibition of Chinese characters 5,000 years old, someone pointed out similarities to the English letters O, C and S, and also to K.

"Oh, does Kissinger go that far back?" said Nixon.

An aide of the former president reported that at his meeting Monday with Chairman Mao Tse-tung, Nixon told Mao he, brought him regards from President Ford.

"Yes, we had a good talk," the Chinese leader said of his meeting with Ford in December.

At Mao's suggestion, he and Nixon toasted each other with tea.

Mao's wife, Chiang Ching, was the Nixons' hostess Monday night at a concert and asked them to convey her regards to President Ford's wife, Betty.

George E. Brewer, professor of human genetics, said the new medication has been effective in easing painful symptoms of the disease and seemed to decrease the number of abnormal blood cells in the blood systems of sickle cell patients.

Japanese police raid homes, offices linked to Lockheed payoffs

TOKYO (AP)—About 380 police and other officials raided the homes and offices today of principal figures linked to the Lockheed Aircraft Corp. payoffs.

There was no immediate word on what was found in the searches at 28 locations. The raids came as no surprise, following a week of press speculation about them.

Targets included Lockheed's Tokyo branch office; the Marubeni Corp., the U.S. firm's sales agent in Japan; and the home of Yoshio Kodama, a behind-the-scenes power in conservative political circles who was identified in Washington testimony as the recipient of more than $7 million from Lockheed.

The raids were part of an investigation into possible violations of the income tax, foreign exchange and foreign trade control laws after reports from a U.S. Senate subcommittee said Lockheed spent more than $12 million in Japan in bribes and payoffs.

Kodama's doctor said officials moved the bedding Kodama was lying on in their search of his house. The 65-year-old Kodama was excused from parliamentary hearings on the Lockheed case last week on grounds he was suffering from after-effects of a recent stroke.

Shortly before the raids, a reporter of the nationally circulated newspaper Asahi Shimbun said he collected Kodama's garbage and found wage slips and a page from an account book.

The case has rocked Prime Minister Takeo Miki's ruling Liberal-Democratic party. Miki has said he would write President Ford asking U.S. help in Japan's investigation.

And the Japanese Diet, or parliament, took the unprecedented step Monday of asking a foreign counterpart for help. It passed resolutions asking the U.S. Congress to provide all information it has on the case.

Some Liberal-Democratic members have said they want the names of government officials who allegedly received Lockheed bribes made public to avoid having the entire party come under suspicion.

A Liberal-Democratic lawmaker, returning to Tokyo from his rural district commented, "My constituents are mainly rice-paddy farmers and because it's winter they have plenty of leisure time to read the political news. All they ask about is Lockheed, Lockheed, Lockheed ..."

Warrant issued in slaying case

A Pomona Superior Court bench warrant has been issued for the arrest of Rodney L. "Ricky" Cole," young Pomona man wanted for questioning in connection with a slaying last April for which another young Pomonan already has been convicted.

The action was taken by Judge Robert M. Takasugi who presided over the trial last November which resulted in the conviction of Gregory Thomas on charges of murder, burglary and rape. The same jury Nov. 12 recommended the death penalty for the 21-year-old Pomonan.

But in the meantime, Thomas' attorney, Joe Borges Jr. of Pomona, moved for a new trial, claiming to have new evidence. Borges subpoenaed Cole to appear for a hearing on the motion last Friday before Takasugi, but Cole failed to appear. At that point, the prosecutor, Deputy Dist. Atty. Robert M. Kuhnert, requested that the warrant be issued. In doing so, Takasugi ruled there would be no bail for Cole upon his arrest.

Thomas was convicted in the slaying of Tessie Fern Williams, 78-year-old former Pomona missionary nurse who was stabbed to death in her small home in Pomona April 7. It was Thomas' claim during his trial that Cole took him to the victim's house that day to pick up a television set Cole claimed was his, and that when they entered the house Thomas found Miss Williams lying dead on the floor.

It was the defense's claim that Miss Williams was killed by someone else, not Thomas, but when Borges called Cole as a defense witness, Cole refused to testify and took the Fifth Amendment on the advice of his attorney. Now Kuhnert wants to question Cole in connection with the case.

In the meantime, the hearing on Borges' request for a new trial has been scheduled Thursday.

Murder suspect Don Merrill Fitzjohn, 29, arrested in Sunday's double slaying in LA VERNE, remained in custody today while Los Angeles County sheriff's homicide detectives and district attorney's deputies studied charges likely to be filed against him.

Fitzjohn, who lives in San Gabriel, was arrested in connection with the fatal shooting of his estranged wife, Jeannie Beth Fitzjohn, 30, and her male companion, Gary Ernest Keltz, 35. Both were shot to death in an apartment at 2421 Foothill Blvd. Sunday morning.

Investigators said that Fitzjohn arrived there shortly after 9:30, forced his way inside and shot Keltz in the first-floor living room and Mrs. Fitzjohn in the second-floor bedroom. Each was shot several times.

Fitzjohn then took the two Fitzjohn girls, ages 3 and 6, from the apartment and left them with his parents in Glendora while he surrendered himself to a policeman friend in Covina.

Fitzjohn later Sunday was turned over to La Verne police who booked him on suspicion of murder. Officers said the suspect was expected to be arraigned today in Pomona Municipal Court.

A 58-year-old woman told ONTARIO police this morning that a burglar crept into a house at 903 Elma St. and made off with her purse and car keys as she slept on a living room sofa.

Mrs. Eva Hawes of Cardiff by the Sea, staying at a friend''s house on Elma Street, told officers she woke up about 4 a.m. and discovered that her purse was missing. She said she went outside and saw that her car, a 1964 brown Chevrolet Nova, was also missing.

Police discovered that the burglar had cut a small hole in the back door screen and pried the latch to the door to gain entrance.

The burglar took the purse containing the car keys, prescription bottles and cash. Police said they are searching for the burglar and the car this morning. The license number of the car was HMP 494.

Two men were booked in West End Jail this morning after allegedly attacking another man with a pool cue Monday night in the Red Carpet Bar at Philadelphia Street and Pipeline Avenue in CHINO, West End sheriff's reported.

Steven Martinez, 35, of 4559 Francis Ave., Chino suffered a head injury in the fight and was treated and released from Chino General Hospital.

Deputies arrested William Leon Hill, 38, of 4460 Philadelphia St., Chino, and Cecil Junior Woerz, 48, of Baldwin Park for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon. Martinez told deputies the men attacked him with a pool cue following an argument over money.

A 16-year-old MONTCLAIR girl walking in the 4400 block of Kingsley Ave. Monday night reported that a man in the rear seat of a passing car fired a shot at her with a handgun.

Peggy Groves told police that the car, described as a dark blue Pontiac, drove by her eastbound on Kingsley. She said as the car passed, a man in the right rear seat stuck his hands out the window and pointed what appeared to be a gun in her direction. She said she heard a shot and the sound of glass breaking.

Police said they could find no broken glass in the area. The men in the car, all described as whites, were sought this morning for questioning in the incident.

Four prosecution witnesses have failed to place John Joe Serrano, 18, of Upland at the scene of an alleged rock throwing incident that killed an ETIWANDA woman Jan. 17.

Serrano of 667 E. Seventh St. is appearing in Fontana's Valley Municipal Court for a preliminary hearing into the death of Mrs. Josephine Antonio Craig, 33, of Etiwanda. Serrano is charged with one count of murder and three counts of throwing objects at a moving vehicle.

The preliminary hearing was continued until today after four witnesses called Friday by Deputy Dist. Atty. Bill Parker could not place Serrano in the area on Base Line Road in Etiwanda where numerous rocks and bottles were allegedly thrown at a number of vehicles.

Mrs. Craig, a passenger in a car with her husband, Eugene Craig, died of head injuries suffered when a large rock was thrown through the passenger side of the vehicle. The Craigs' young daughter, sitting in her mother's lap, was injured in the incident.

Motions for dismissal of the charges against Serrano made by defense attorney Stephen Becker were denied during the first part of the preliminary hearing Friday by Judge William A. Friedrich. In the hearing Craig testified that he could only see shadows of several persons in the darkness. Three other witnesses recalled how they were also driving in the area when their vehicles were pelted by rocks and bottles. None of the later witnesses could describe Serrano as one of those throwing the rocks.

Parker told Judge Friedrich that he would call a witness to the stand today who could positively identify Serrano as one of the persons throwing rocks at vehicles that night.

Becker, who contends that the incident was "a tragedy" involving a number of adolescents, but one in which his client was involved, said he would move for dismissal of the charges again if the prosecution could not produce a witness placing his client at the scene of the tragedy.

$5,000 settles suit for pie in the face

PALISADES PARK, N.J. (AP) — A Fort Lee woman who was hit in the face with a pie got the last laugh when she accepted a $5,000 out-of-court settlement to drop her punitive damage suit.

Marlene Blum, a receptionist for North Jersey Lithographers here, was at her desk last May 20 when two young women walked in, showed her a business card for "Pie In the Eye Inc.," and one of them tossed the pies, police said.

According to Mrs. Blum's lawyer, the woman suffered a burning sensation in her eyes, was forced to quit her job and has been seeing a psychiatrist because of nervousness.

The pie throwers, Diane Rousch of Ho-Ho-Kus and Marie Stuyck of Ramsey, pleaded guilty in Municipal Court to assault and were fined $50 each.

Seven of Mrs. Blum's former coworkers have agreed to pay the $5,000, according to her lawyer Frank P. Friedman. A lawyer for one of the seven said the pie throwing had been done as a "practical joke" at a cost of $35.

Miss Stuyck, who said she founded "Pie In the Eye" after reading about a similar California venture, said, "We're in the humor business. It's in our contracts. But it's a shame when it comes to the point that there's not much humor in some people."

$197 million in S.S. overpayments made under new system

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — The Social Security Administration made overpayments of $197 million to the nation's elderly, blind and disabled in the first six months of a new distribution system, an independent audit report maintains.

A large share of the overpayment by the Supplemental Security Income program is claimed by 31 states which have their own state social security programs. The states plan to use the report as a basis for recovering their money.

"The negotiations are going to be interesting," said Louisiana's legislative auditor, Joe Burris, who released a copy of the report Monday.

The Washington Star last August reported that overpayments amounted to $403 million during the program's first 18 months of operation, beginning Jan. 1, 1974. It blamed the mistakes on computer errors.

At the time, Social Security administrators took issue with the Star's report of $403 million, but acknowledged there had been $285 million in overpayments that caseworkers were trying to recover.

The Social Security Administration once sent funds to each of the 31 states for distribution. The states, in turn, sent each recipient one check composed of both state and federal funds.

Beginning Jan. 1, 1974, the administration began distributing all the checks, billing the 31 states for their shares.

The most recent report was drafted by a surveillance committee composed of auditors from seven of the states and was based on an audit of the Social Security Administration by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The HEW audit, which covers only the first six months of the program, has not been completed.

John T. Walsh of the New York State audit office and chairman of the committee, acknowledged in a cover letter that HEW and SSA might be displeased with early release of the report.

The committee report said the HEW audit has disclosed serious deficiencies in internal controls exercised by SSA officials as well as disclosure of hundreds of errors in the checks to recipients.

The report did not include any specific examples.

The audit has discovered errors in over 50 per cent of the payment records checked, said the report.

Additionally, more than $5.6 million in Social Security checks issued in early 1974 still haven't been cashed, the audit showed.

The highest degree of error was in Delaware, where 89 per cent of the payment records had errors, said the report. The overpayment was $348,000.

In California, the percentage of error was 55 per cent and the overpayment was $49.6 million, the report said. The overpayment was $30.2 million in New York.

Candidate rejection bill fails

SACRAMENTO (AP) — An initiative that would permit voters to reject all candidates for office has apparently failed to qualify for the June 8 ballot, Secretary of State March Fong Eu says.

The "Rejection of Candidates" initiative would have applied to non primary and non-presidential elections.

Ms. Eu said Thursday the initiative needed 312,404 valid signatures, but the deadline was Wednesday and no petitions had even been submitted to county clerks in Los Angeles, Orange, Sacramento and San Joaquin counties.

The proponents, David Bergland of Newport Beach and the Libertarian party of California, managed less than 1,000 signatures combined for San Diego and Santa Barbara counties, Ms. Eu said.

Asks treaty ratification

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford asked the Senate to ratify new tax treaties between the United States and both Israel and the Arab Republic of Egypt.

Joyce Brothers
Fears senility, death

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm 32 and for the past year I've been aware that I've become increasingly fearful of growing old. This may be because I spent quite a bit of that time taking care of an elderly aunt who was living in a nursing home. After I would leave the home, I'd have nightmares for weeks seeing myself in exactly the same situation. I'm so frightened of becoming senile that I have fantasies about committing suicide before I reach senility. My parents are dead and I've really no one I can talk to about this. I find that most of my friends simply consider my fears far out and abnormal. I guess I'm not only afraid of aging. I'm also afraid of death and sometimes I can't help thinking about this. -- T.P.

Dear T.P.: Your fear of dying is not abnormal. Studies have shown that almost everyone fears dying and the intensity of the fear has nothing to do with a person's age. Older people don't necessarily fear dying any more than younger people do. In fact, teenagers have an unusually high anxiety about their own death, the more complete and fulfilled one's life is, the less one tends to fear death.

In our society with so much emphasis placed on youth, it is certainly not unusual to fear aging. I think it's important to recognize that everyone has fears and this particular fear is not uncommon. I suspect that those friends you mention who consider you "far out" actually suffer from fears of death and aging too, but they may be unable to admit their anxiety. Our overemphasis on youth often results in depression, anxiety, insomnia, sexual difficulties and also in marital problems. You're fortunate in being able to exress and recognize your anxieties now so that you'll be able to do something to overcome them.

There are many misconceptions about aging and we are just beginning to deal with them. For instance, many people feel that everyone, or almost everyone, over a certain age becomes forgetful and senile. This simply isn't true. Dr. Richard Shader, associate professor of psychiatry at Harvard Medical School says a person doesn't have to lose his memory and turn senile just because he's over 65.

Senility and memory loss is sometimes caused by depression. Elderly people may think of what they want to accomplish in the little time they have left and realize they aren't going to reach the high goals they set for themselves. They become frustrated, feel defeated and lose their self-esteem. When elderly people become depressed they tend to withdraw into themselves and they lose interest in people and in new experiences. They may withdraw because they feel others have lost interest in them, or they may feel excluded because of a loss of hearing.

It's important for you to attack your anxiety and depression now. A University of California study indicates that it is important that young people expand their interests and activities beyond family or work so that when retirement time comes they will be prepared for challenges, and will have varied interests and hobbies.

Attitude has a great deal to do with how people age. One study revealed that elderly women who were depressed, fearful, full of self-doubts and who suffered from problems of inactivity, and lack of interest in life lived exactly the same kind of a life when they were 30. Those who had a positive view of life in their youth usually maintained that positive view in their later years. Therefore, they were happier, more productive and better adjusted.

One First Lady has no portrait

NEW YORK (AP) — The wife of the 12th President of the United States is a faceless woman today.

No one knows what Margaret Taylor, wife of Zachary Taylor, looked like because no portrait or likeness of her exists, according to Peter G. Todd, senior exhibit specialist for the Kodak Photo Gallery here. When he began to assemble a display of 33 portrait photographs of presidential wives who resided in the White House, he could find no authentic likeness of Mrs. Taylor in any archive.

Legend has it that when General Taylor fought in the Mexican War, his devout wife vowed that if her husband returned home safely she would foreswear society. She kept her word until her death in 1852. During her White House residency she welcomed friends and kinfolk in the upstairs sitting rooms, presided at the family table and attended church regularly. She took no part in formal social functions, leaving all duties of official hostess to her youngest daughter.

She never sat for a formal portrait. For this reason, she is represented at the gallery with an empty picture frame among the other portraits of presidential wives.

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Net income of Times Mirror Co. dropped by 19 per cent to $47.2 million, or $1.40 a share, despite a 7 per cent increase in revenues to a record $807 million in 1975.

Business briefs

CHICAGO (AP) — The Rock Island Lines, showing a $4.7 million profit in the last quarter of 1975, has "arrested the slide toward eventual financial disaster," says trustee William M. Gibbons.

The railroad, which filed for reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws March 17, announced 1975 losses of $31.1 million Tuesday. But the upswing in 1975's final three months marked the first time in ten years the railroad showed a quarter profit.

Appointed trustee by U.S. District Judge Frank J. McGarr, Gibbons cautioned the fourth quarter results must be viewed "with a very guarded sort of optimism."

But despite freight declines in January, experienced by railroads throughout the nation, Gibbons predicted the gains were an indication of things to come.

CLAREMONT COLLEGIATE SCHOOL OFFERS SPECIAL COURSES

Beginning March 1, Claremont Collegiate School will offer special courses in English, mathematics, and history to students in surrounding high schools who need extra preparation for college entrance, Arthur Biscoe, headmaster, announced today.

The special courses, aimed to upgrade basic skills, will be limited in enrollment and will give a full semester credit through June 4. The courses are open specifically to 10th, 11th, and 12th graders.

CCS, a private, co-educational, day school, now offers grades 7 through 12 to fulltime students and is fully accredited by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges.

In announcing the new educational service, Mr. Biscoe said, "All of us are aware that there has been a general decrease in the level of basic learning skills, which handicaps an otherwise qualified student as he or she progresses to college. Because of our limited size and quality of teaching, we feel we can help a selected number of motivated students to be better prepared for college by taking advantage of this service now."

Interested students and their parents can obtain information on admission, fees, and scheduling by calling CCS at 624-1634 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on weekdays — immediately.

SPRING FLING TOUR WITH A ZING

Hillsen's Holiday Tours of Redlands is now booking reservations for its Tenth Annual Southern Spring Fling. There will be four buses, leaving on consecutive days on March 10, 11, 12, and 13, from POMONA. This is a leisurely-paced delux motorcoach tour of 27 days, especially designed to rekindle your pride in America in this Bicentennial year. Before approaching the Southern states, the tour will touch Western points of interest such as Carlsbad Caverns and old Fort Stockton; then on to Texas, San Antonio and the Alamo, and in Houston a guided tour of the Astrodome. A highlight of the Southern Fling is a visit to the Antebellum homes and gardens in Natchez, Mississippi, New Orleans, Louisiana, and Mobile, Alabama.

A visit to the famous Cypress Gardens in Florida is a prelude to arrival in Key West, the southernmost city in the United States, via the Overseas Hiway. Here you ride the Conch train and try the Key Lime pie before traveling north to Miami Beach where you'll enjoy the Jungle Queen. Cape Canaveral is included in the tour on the way to historical St. Augustine, the oldest city in the United States. A nostalgic visit to Charleston and Savannah in South Carolina will bring you back to the time of gracious and leisurely living.

The motorcoach turns north by west to approach the Great Smokies and the beauty of azaleas and dogwood in Tennessee. Andrew Jackson's famous home, "The Hermitage" is a must in this Bicentennial year of 1976. The tour covers eastern Oklahoma's Lake country, Oklahoma City, and the Texas Panhandle. From Amarillo, the coach carries us to one of the favorite stops, "old town" in Albuquerque.

On the way to Southern California an overnight stop in Oak Creek Canyon, Arizona, and Las Vegas, Nevada, completes this never-to-be-forgotten tour of nine states.

A complete brochure may be obtained by contacting Hillsen's Holiday Tours, P.O. Box 3 or 102 Orange, Redlands, Ca. 92373

RADIO SHACK REPORTS JANUARY SALES

FORT WORTH, TX — Tandy Corporation (NYSE), parent company of the worldwide Radio Shack store chain, has reported sales in excess of $58,300,000 for the month of January, 1976, a gain of 57% over January, 1975.

Radio Shack's North American consumer sales were $53,200,000, a gain of 63% over the same month last year. The January, 1976 sales of Radio Shack's old stores in North America, which includes only the sales of stores in existence more than one year, increased 31% over January, 1975.

"Apart from the obvious gains due to enhanced CB sales, all sections of Radio Shack's merchandise line showed significant improvement," according to Lewis Kornfeld, the company's president.

Kornfeld also revealed that in the latest 12 months, the worldwide store system has increased by a total of 1194 outlets of which all but 127 were in the U.S. and Canada. "We are continuing a very aggressive new store opening program into our 1976-77 fiscal year," Kornfeld said.

Radio Shack presently has more than 4200 stores and dealers in all 50 states and Canada, as well as nearly 400 stores in seven countries operating under the name Tandy International Electronics.

How's your telephone personality?

A good telephone image may spell success to your business, according to Jack M. King, public affairs administrator for the General Telephone Co.

"It is good business to develop a pleasing telephone personality because most customers and potential customers develop their opinion of your company from the way they are treated on the telephone," said King.

He offered these tips to develop good telephone presence:

— Make your voice warm and pleasant. Get a "Glad to hear from you" ring to it. Telephone courtesy oils the wheels of business and smooths ruffled feelings.

— Talk normally. Some people completely change their personality when on the phone.

— Pronounce all numerals and letters carefully. "Five" and "nine" can easily be confused. Same with "oh" and "four".

— Tell your caller first and fast who you are. It's business-like and he'll appreciate it.

— Nobody likes to be kept waiting, especially on the telephone. So answer all calls promptly. If you can't, explain the delay and aplogize for it.

— If there's a message, write it down. Don't trust to memory. Indicate who called, what time, why and their telephone number.

— When making a call around the corner or across the nation, dial it yourself rather than have a secretary place it for you. And stay put, within easy reach of your telephone for return calls.

— Don't keep your location a secret. Tell whoever will answer the telephone where you will be, how long you'll be there and when you'll be back.

"Because all businesses rely on their customers for their existence, good telephone usage is vital," King said.

"It is an important step in the successful handling of daily business and assures your customer that he will receive the courteous treatment he deserves."

General Telephone business customers desiring to give their employes special instruction on good telephone usage may contact their local business office listed in both the white and yellow pages of their local directory.

"The service is provided without charge and has proven very beneficial in helping business customers get the most out of their telephone," King said.

D.A. choice of clique—Bugliosi

Vincent Bugliosi, 41-year-old Manson gang prosecutor and aspirant to the office of District Attorney of Los Angeles County, has begun drumming up support in the Pomona Valley while leveling criticism at the incumbent.

Bugliosi ran unsuccessfully against the late Joseph Busch in 1972 and lost in one of the closest elections in county history. After Busch's death last year he was passed over by county supervisors who selected the current district attorney, John K. Van de Kamp, to fill Busch's unexpired term. That office is up for election in November.

In a visit to Pomona, Bugliosi charged that Van de Kamp, a former U.S. public defender, was the choice of a Los Angeles clique which includes The Los Angeles Times. He said that Van de Kamp has never prosecuted a criminal case, but now heads an office of 587 prosecutors.

Bugliosi was a deputy district attorney for eight years and is the author of "Helter Skelter," the story of his prosecution in the Tate-La Bianca murders.

During his visit, Bugliosi claimed that morale in the district attorney's office is low and that Van de Kamp, whom he described as "aristocratic," has no rapport with the deputies. As a former prosecutor himself, Bugliosi said, he would be an experienced leader in the office.

Bugliosi stated that he supports the death penalty but is against gun controls which would prevent private citizens from owning and possessing pistols.

He said that if such a law were passed, some citizens would turn in their pistols, but criminals would not. The result would be that criminals would continue to be armed and private citizens would be even easier victims.

Bugliosi is married and has two children. He presently is in private practice and is working on two new books.

Pants story

The word pants is derived from a stock character of classic Italian comedy — "Pantalone". He wore a kind of leg covering that resembled our modern-day trousers. Later, in England, the Duke of Wellington gave the necessary impetus to the changeover from knee breeches to pants about 1815.

State report urges full school tax

By PHYLLIS CANNON
PB Staff Writer

The decentralization of management, an early determination of a new superintendent and levying of the full amount of voter-approved tax are recommendations contained in a state team's management review now in the hands of Pomona school board members.

The report culminates an audit of the Pomona school district begun last spring by a school district management assistance team working under the state Education Department.

The audit was requested by Pomona board members and administrators looking for ways to improve organizational, administrative and operational processes.

It will be publicly reviewed at a special school board meeting tonight at 7 in the board room of the Education Center at 800 S. Garey Ave.

In recommending decentralized management, the report reads: "Decisions should be made at the lowest practical level" and "decisionmakers should be held accountable. Centralized direction should be exercised only to the extent necessary to support-evaluate decisions reached at operating levels.

"Decentralized management should be operated on the philosophical basic that management involves the development of people, not the direction of things.

"Decentralization provides for more relevant, and measurably greater, creativity than does centralized decisionmaking."

In a tersely worded recommendation, the study team wrote, "The board should make an early determination with regard to the status of the superintendent. The district should not continue to operate any longer than necessary with an acting or interim superintendent."

Sidney G. Moses, the district's assistant superintendent of educational services, has been serving as acting superintendent since last Oct. 15, when Robert Wentz resigned to accept the position of superintendent in St. Louis, Mo.

Wentz served as Pomona's superintendent of schools four years and gained a reputation for strong top-level management.

In recommending that the full amount of voter-approved tax be levied, the study team wrote, "The revenue acquired can be used to offset inflation or to build up reserves."

Seventeen cents of the 94 cent tax override per $100 assessed valuation approved by district voters last May has not yet been levied.

This recommendation was based on projections for 1976-77 wherein the study team said the district's average daily attendance (ADA) will remain at 25,229, same as this year; assessed valuation will increase two per cent, and "salary and supply expenditures will increase by six per cent, approximating the percentage of inflation allowance increase permitted in computing the 1976-77 revenue limit."

A total of 74 recommendations are made in the report, which Moses calls "very well done."

"It's excellent, really," he continued. "It serves as good baseline data for future planning, changes and reorganization. If a new superintendent comes in from the outside it would be a tremendous help to him."

The one area in the report where Moses had hoped for more detailed insturction was in the reorganization of education services. "I had hoped the report would more clearly indicate how this department should be organized," he said.

Some other recommendations contained in the report are:

— That business services department "be organized along more functional lines."

— That "roles and functions of the office of intergroup education and office of community information" be clearly defined.

— That the school board make a commitment to "governance by policy" particularly in the area of spending.

— That the board establish a budget advisory committee and community representatives of both employes

— That money received through state and federal categorial income be included in the adopted budget as a matter of policy. "The amount received from these programs, approximately $5 million, is a significant amount and should be included in the adopted budget. If not, the staff and community may not realize the full amount of funds available to support district programs. The more visible these funding programs, the greater the credibility among the communities affected."

— That high priority be given to development of a formal inventory control system.

— That maintenance and operations be reorganized to provide for better management and improved control.

— That a comprehensive safety program be established.

— That the district reconsider a previous proposal (made two years ago by then Asst. Supt. of Business Garret C. Nichols) that food preparation kitchens be consolidated through a three- to five-year phase-in program.

— That written procedures for major functions of the personnel office be developed.

— That the process for interviewing and selecting candidates for key positions be clarified by the board.

— That the district's system of employe performance evaluation be clarified.

CTA president says districts misusing funds

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

The head of the California Teachers Association claims school districts in the valley are making improper use of the money the state gave them to fight inflation.

Steve Edwards of Martinez, president of the 150,000-member professional organization, said in Ontario Monday several districts here have used state funds obtained under Senate Bill 220 to refurbish administrative offices and to "fatten their reserves" at the expense of the teachers.

"That money was to be used to fight inflation by giving the teachers higher pay and to offset the rising cost of teaching supplies," he declared. "Instead, the school boards are pocketing the money and putting it into reserves. Those are deplorable practices."

Edwards spoke in the board room of the Ontario Airport at the invitation of West End Chapter of the CTA. The chapter comprises 1,700 teachers from the Ontario-Montclair, Chaffey, Upland, Chino, Alta Loma, Central and Cucamonga districts.

He said teachers from Chaffey complained to him that the school board had threatened to lay off 40 teachers while using the state's inflation money to refurbish administrative offices.

At the Ontario-Montclair and Upland districts, boards had threatened to cut staff while "pocketing money and keeping them in reserve," he declared.

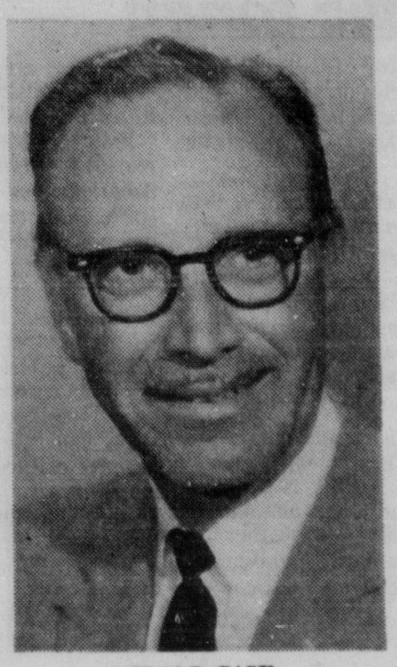

Edwards asserted that the money thus "pocketed" was being diverted to other uses in practices that violated the spirit of the allocations.

He contended that such practices were not unique to the West End; they were widespread throughout the state because "school boards were all getting their interpretations from the same sources."

But he contended that this was "no time to build up big fat reserves like we used to. If we don't do something about our problems when attention is needed — when we close our eyes to the immediate needs — we may not have any future to worry about."

Edwards said he was in the area to discuss school financing as well as the state's new collective bargaining law which he called a model that other employe organizations will soon emulate.

He said that for the first time, the law gave teachers as well as school boards ground rules to follow in processing grievances as well as wage negotiations, and a referee to see that everyone sticks to those rules.

New criticism raised over Mall renovation, home remodeling aid

By CONRAD CASLER
PB Correspondent

Beautification of Pomona's downtown Mall hangs in the balance today after city councilmen indicated they may delete $220,000 earmarked for that project from federal block fund requests.

Also facing a possible council ax or severe pruning is an item tabbed at $95,000 for low income family home improvements. The proposal advanced by City Manager Jerrold Gonce would have Bank of America match the city's $95,000 from the federal government with an equal amount to be loaned to low income citizens at five per cent interest.

But if such a loan were to be defaulted, B of A would repossess the property with the city realizing nothing.

Challenging these two facets of the federal block fund request of $877,000 for 1976-77 by both the audience and councilmen themselves Monday night forced postponement of a vote on the issue until at least next week.

In other action councilmen:

— Raised the pay of four of the city's top executives.

— Tabled for at least a week acting on the request of a second ambulance company to operate in Pomona.

— Tabled action on the Barbara Greenwood Bungalow as an historic monument.

— Appointed three new commissioners.

Almost 20 speakers from the unusually heavily attended meeting, challenged the city staff's order of priorities concerning parceling out funds from the city's $877,000 federal block fund request.

Most objected to spending additional funds on the downtown Mall. Councilmen Charles Bader led that battle from the podium casting doubt on the wisdom of spending federal funds on the Mall when a private developer might do a better job.

Mayor Ray Lepire said that during sparcely attended public hearings recently, the public requested Mall funding. He then scolded the audience for not turning out for public hearings late last year and earlier this year. But one member of the audience charged both major meetings were held when working persons could not attend.

In explaining a $50,000 outlay for installation of 1,000 new street lights, Gonce explained that the figure was for one year only. He said his staff was drafting a new city street lighting district ordinance which would be funded by additional city taxes following the 1976-77 fiscal year. Such an ordinance would raise city taxes, he said.

Councilman Adrian Wright asked Gonce if additional personnel would have to be hired to administer the controversial federally funded programs. Gonce said existing staff members could do the job.

"Well, what are those people doing now, then?" Wright fired back, implying that they apparently were not working fulltime now if they could absorb additional duties.

Questions and objections from the audience dragged on more than 90 minutes, forcing councilmen to take a delaying action until they can study the $877,000 measure further.

On a 4-1 vote with Wright objecting, councilmen raised the salaries of Gonce to $37,104 annually, up two per cent; City Atty. Patrick Sampson to $31,332, up five per cent; City Clerk L. B. Thomas to $22,332, up five per cent, and City Treasurer Mrs. Ruth Redepenning to $17,232, up 10 per cent.

Wright objected on grounds that other city employes were not given pay hikes and some even face layoff.

Tabling of the ambulance measure — which was expected to be another controversial item — came quickly. Bader asked City Atty. Sampson to redraft an ambulance ordinance which would leave Cole-Shaffer as the sole company to answer emergency calls within Pomona but would allow other private ambulance companies to answer non-emergency calls within the city. Cole-Shaffer now has both emergency and non emergency franchises. Council is expected to debate and act on the new ordinance within two weeks.

Councilmen also tabled action on the Barbara Greenwood historic school bungalow at the request of backers of the plan.

Appointed as a new Parks and Recreation Department commissioner was Miss Mary B. Hendrickson. Taking the oath as planning commissioners were Richard Todd and Nelson Sherer.

In one of the few unanimous and non-controversial measures of the evening, councilmen approved a zone change for the corner of S. Garey Avenue and Phillips Boulevard to allow construction of a Stater Brothers market.

Alta Loma board votes to acquire school site

By VANCE DURGIN
PB Correspondent

Alta Loma School District trustees took the first step toward acquiring a site for a new elementary school Monday night. In a unanimous decision by the four members present, the board voted to declare its intention to purchase a 10-acre lot on Jasper Street just south of Hillside Avenue.

The board's action comes just one week before Alta Loma voters go to the polls to pass judgment on an $8.1 million local bond and state loan funding package which would provide construction funds for the rapidly-growing school district.

Board action on the Jasper Street site is contingent on voter approval of the funding package. A two-thirds majority is required for passage.

The $8.1 million in construction funds will come from $1.5 million in local bonds coupled with a $6.6 million state loan. The funds will be used to construct 12 additional classrooms at Jasper Elementary School, build two new elementary schools, and add additional classrooms to Alta Loma Junior High School. School officials estimate the new buildings could be ready by the 1977-78 school year.

At a meeting of the Alta Loma Chamber of Commerce held prior to the school board gathering, trustee Walter Achuff made a strong appeal for passage of the construction funds.

Tying the success of the funding proposal to the future of the community, Achuff declared that "the issue must pass because the alternative is indefinite double sessions." Currently, some 400 students are on double session in in the district.

After the meeting, schools supt. Floyd Stork pointed out that passage of the funding measure would have no effect on local tax rates.

Under California law, school districts on the state loan program pay a fluctuating percentage of their tax rates for loan repayment depending on the amount of outstanding local bonds. "When local bond indebtedness is high, the state takes a smaller percentage and vice versa," said Stork. "The net effect is a stable tax rate.

Stork also commented that chances for the measure's passage were "good, adding "we've had no organized opposition."

The ultimate fate of the funding proposal will be decided by Alta Loma voters March 2.

Montclair man hurt in crash

A Montclair man suffered minor injuries Monday when his car struck a pickup which had stalled on the Pomona Freeway near Grand Avenue in Pomona.

Larry Kight, 18, of 5533 Vernon Court, was treated at San Dimas Community Hospital for facial cuts and bruises and later released.

Glendora girl drowns in pool

A 3-year-old girl drowned in the swimming pool behind her home at 1011 S. Farber St. in Glendora late Monday afternoon.

The victim, Rachel Reyes, was discovered floating facedown at the shallow end of the pool when her mother, Mrs. Rose Reyes, 26, went into the backyard looking for her.

Mrs. Reyes said she pulled the victim from the pool and called Los Angeles County Fire Department paramedics. The child was given mouth-to-mouth resuscitation until they arrived and then was rushed to Glendora Community Hospital where efforts to revive her failed.

Mrs. Reyes told Glendora police that the little girl had been missing only a few minutes when she began looking for her.

Pomonan hurt in cycle crash

A motorcyclist was injured in Pomona Monday afternoon in a collision with a car at Willow and Alameda streets.

The victim, Everardo H. Padilla, 31, Pomona, was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where he was released after treatment of scrapes and bruises.

Police said Padilla was northbound in Alameda and the motorist, Steve Valenzuela, 56, Riverside, was westbound in Willow when the collision occurred.

Hearing slated

S.D. wants ideas on scenic area controls

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

At the urging of one member, the San Dimas City Council decided Monday night to hold a public hearing on the development of standards for a scenic highway overlay zone.

The unanimous council action came at the insistence of Councilman Marvin Ersher and concurrence from City Atty. Norm Oliver. Oliver pointed out that although the hearing was not legally required, it would be good public relations to conduct such a hearing. It might also, noted legal counsel, alleviate future problems in protest of criteria for the zoning ordinance amendment.

The public hearing was set for March 22.

The purpose of the amendment is to "provide a means of implementing the scenic highways element of the general plan by reviewing the development of adjacent property to minimize the impact upon scenic corridors," Planning Director Mark Goldberg explained.

Although each applicant would have to submit a precise plan to the Planning Department and Commission detailing the location, height, setbacks and elevations of all structures, walls and fences, alndscaping and design, size, lighting and location of all signs, Ersher was not satisfied.

"I prefer that since this was developed under the public hearing process that the City Council should entertain testimony from the public," Ersher commented. "We would probably be able to make a more intelligent decision on this matter after hearing information from engineers, developers and the general public."

Goldberg said a hearing had been held at the commission level and only two had testified. The discussion there, he said, centered around the extent of the setback and how specific the criteria would be.

Ersher reiterated that the council "should have the benefit of getting the pro and con on fixed setbacks as opposed to precise plans. There should be an opportunity for the public to comment."

County reverses planners' decision

Upland area drug center loses out

The San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors Monday reversed the county Planning Commission's decision which had permitted the Crossroads drug treatment center to operate in the Mont Vista Lodge, 2426 N. Euclid Ave., San Antonio Heights.

The commission's decision on Jan. 8 had been appealed by residents in the area who wished to force the program from the neighborhood. The supervisors' action withdraws the site approval given by the commission and leaves the center with no authorization to operate.

The drug and alcohol treatment center had been operating in the county area north of Upland for nearly a year but the 40 adults and six children who had been living at the center had already been forced to vacate over the weekend due to court action.

San Bernardino County Superior Court Judge Joseph Katz issued a temporary restraining order against the facility and an order to vacate after Dist. Atty. James Cramer argued that the facility had been allowing sewage to drain into the public street thereby causing an immediate danger to the public health and safety.

Jim Wilson, program director at the treatment center said that the septic tank was drained and repaired over the weekend, at least partly correcting this problem.

He added that there are several septic tanks on the property, which is outside the Upland city limits and not a part of that sewage system.

"But the ruling Monday by the supervisors changes our position again," Wilson said this morning.

Wilson said the Crossroads staff and advisers will meet today to determine their action.

The director added that not all residents of the lodge are undergoing treatment for abuse of alcohol or other drugs. He stressed the fact that the center operated on the premise that a family and community setting enhanced the treatment program.

Packaged self-reliance

Anyone who thinks that the pioneer spirit of self-reliance is long vanished from the American scene ought to skim through the pages of a book published late last year.

The book has no ideology to sell or cause to push. But in showing "how anyone can make anything by ordering do-it-yourself kits through the mail," it is a refreshing antidote to the currently prevalent and gloomy notion that the put-upon American consumer is entirely the captive of the big corporations.

"The Catalog of Kits," by Jeffrey Feinman, is what its title says it is. But while it covers the usual things — needlework and other crafts, model railroads, etc. — that have always been available, it is also an impressive compendium of projects one would not ordinarily place in the do-it-yourself category. Some examples:

— A 25-inch solid-state color television set said to be more advanced than anything yet available on the commercial market.

— A fully aerobatic, high-speed, single-place airplane (which also has a jet-powered version). Or Volkswagen-powered airplanes or gyrocopters, sailplanes and balloons.

— For boating enthusiasts, everything from simple paddleboards to a 21-foot sloop.

— Not only household furniture but complete houses, including a variety of log cabins ranging from the modest to the magnificent and in cost from a few thousand dollars to more than $35,000.

— Musical instruments, from replicas of 17th-century harpsichords to the most modern electronic organs.

At some 200 pages, the catalog offers only a sampling of more than 50,000 kits sold by thousands of companies. Some firms asked that they not be listed because they already "had more business than they could handle."

Not all the kits are less expensive than the finished product, although this is usually the case. But the feeling of accomplishment from building something yourself, the personal satisfaction and educational experience, are not to be measured in terms of dollars.

And as the author points out, you can't complain about shoddy workmanship when you do it yourself.

Retake on animal safety

The American Humane Association is championing a bill that has been introduced in the California legislature which would make it a crime to ill or abuse an animal in the making of an entertainment motion picture.

The bill would also require producers, before releasing a film, to file an affidavit with a state commission affirming that no animal had been deliberately killed or abused. The commission would be empowered to stop the distribution of any film in which it was found that this had occurred.

Many people may be under the impression that the HA was already doing an effective job of overseeing the welfare of animals used in filmaking. Sadly, the facts are otherwise.

The elimination in 1966 of the Motion Picture Production Code also eliminated the AHA as the organization responsible for supervising animal action during filming. Although the association still provides supervisory services for those filmmakers requesting it, many choose not to avail themselves of the opportunity.

The result has been an increasing disregard for the humane treatment and safety of animal actors, says the association. Thus the need for this bill.

Think on these things

When you come right down to it, you are your own best investment. Learning to live with what you have is fine if you like what you have. If you do not, then it is time to do something about it. Investing yourself in something that has no real meaning for you is like traveling just any road on the map without knowing where it leads.

One of your best self investments is good health — physical and mental and spiritual. Those are the basics for all good investments. If one is broken down or under developed, it weakens the whole plan. The rule is to know you have whatever it takes to invest wisely — to maintain the best of you and improve the rest of you.

The key issue

Dear Editor:

I feel a response is needed to the two recently published letters regarding the Pomona school board's consideration of school holidays honoring Martin Luther King and Mexican-American heritage.

Both letter writers are apparently members of an ethnic minority in our country and we can all recognize that their particular group and others have suffered hardships in assimilating into the American mainstream.

I also agree with the premise that our country is made up of many different peoples and we should be one, rather than to point up the differences between us. Both people I feel are speaking from a gut level having endured some hardships, and hold the view that there should be no prejudice, no racism, no difference.

But I have to point out to them and others that this is an idealistic view and not reality. Reality is being at the bottom of the totem pole in any statistics available. And whether it's economic, housing, education or whatever, blacks and Mesican-Americans are there. The reason for this is that they are identifiable minorities and this is the key issue.

Every person in the United States except Indians are hyphenated-Americans so let's not pull away from reality and pretend that racism and prejudice do not exist. The idea of a National Heritage Day might solve some problems in New York, Milwaukee or Boston, but not here.

Two holidays in our school district won't solve the problems either, but in an area where more than 50 percent is made up of blacks and browns I feel that it is important that these groups' cultures be recognized, if only to give these minorities a stronger feeling of their culture belonging to the American culture as a whole — Richard Rodriguez, La Verne

Nixon in role of courier

WASHINGTON — When Richard Nixon returns from Peking, he may bring a secret message for President Ford.

From sources directly involved, we have learned that a moderate faction in Peking has made several backdoor attempts to sound out the President about improving Chinese-American relations.

The moderate Chinese would like to strengthen their hand against the Soviets. The best way to achieve this, they feel, would be to tighten their ties with the United States. They want to work out a formula, therefore, which would put the Taiwan question on a back burner and permit the reapprochement to flower.

But some Chinese don't trust Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who has been altogether too cozy with the Kremlin to suit them. Therefore, the feelers to Ford were passed through private channels.

The message reached the White House where it was regarded with some puzzlement. Ford's advisers don't quite know how to evaluate it. They are unsure, for example, whether those who want to bypass the Taiwan issue have the authority to do so.

At this point, arrangements were suddenly made to receive Richard Nixon in Peking. One possible reason, our sources suggest, is to use him as an emissary. The moderates may ask him to pass their proposition to Ford in more positive terms and to impress upon the President the seriousness of their intentions.

The timing of his trip could be significant. He will arrive in the midst of an intense power struggle in Peking.

The moderates still hold most of the key posts. They want to concentrate on improving China's economic stability and international standing. They also favor a better understanding with the United States.

They are pitted against the radicals who want to delay economic growth, concentrating instead upon the "class struggle." They deeply distrust the U.S. capitalist superpower.

Apparently, they have been able to mount enough strength to block the late Premier Chou En-lai's handpicked successor, Teng Hsiao-ping, from taking over the premiership. Instead Hua Kuo-feng, a relatively obscure bureaucrat, has been named acting premier until the struggle is settled.

Teng's slip from power took official Washington by complete surprise. According to the secret minutes of a White House briefing, President Ford and Secretary Kissinger returned from Peking in December fully convinced Teng would be the next premier.

"Mao made clear to President Ford that Teng is the man," the minutes quote Kissinger as saying. The President confirmed that Teng was "very much in charge."

Why did Mao mislead the President less than three months ago about the next Chinese premier? No one in Washington seems to know, but the experts have offered three possible theories:

1. Mao may not have intended to mislead the President. One expert was told by communist sources in Hong Kong that Teng, indeed, was set to take over the premiership. Something may have happened to cause Mao to change his mind.

2. Other analysts believe the Chinese deliberately misled Ford in order to conceal the turmoil beneath the surface. According to this theory, Peking didn't want the Americans to know about the internal power struggle. Therefore, the President was told Teng was in charge and the leadership was stable.

3. Still other analysts contend that Ford and Kissinger deceived themselves by accepting that Mao Tse-tung is still the ultimate authority on the Chinese mainland. Mao is now a faltering 82 years, and he isn't always articulate, said one source.

"He is still the high priest," the source explained. "The real leaders consult with the old man and keep him informed. But his main function is to appear when there is something to be said or a picture is needed."

Intelligence sources say his interpreter sometimes does not repeat what the old man has said. This has led these sources to suspect that the interpreter is instructed in advance what Mao should say and sticks to the advance script no matter what the old man really says.

The bottom line, however, is that official Washington doesn't really know for sure what is happening in Peking.

FIFTY-DAY HEARINGS: The Senate Small Business Committee is quietly exploring neglected corners of the U.S. economy, ranging from wind mills to eyeglasses.

A confidential staff memorandum, prepared on orders of Chairman Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., recommends more than 50 days of hearings and six massive staff studies.

"Recent trends in mergers and forced corporate takeovers," declares the memo, have inhibited "the ability of the independent business to survive." These trends have brought monopolistic pricing and have increased unemployment.

Unions go after the troops

Three unions are contemplating "organizing" our military men. Three separate labor organizations are considering going after our troops: The American Federation of Government Employees. The Assn. of Civilian Technicians. The National Maritime Union.

It's not inconceivable. Some members of our armed forces did try to organize a union during the Vietnamese war. Big Labor's George Meany opposed it then. He's not opposing it now.

You can remember when it was inconceivable that schoolteachers would ever be unionized. And police and firemen going on strike was beyond imagining.

Yet as surely as these impossibilities have been realized, unions of military personnel are increasingly likely.

The AFL-CIO has studied the issue for months, finds no constitutional restraints which would prohibit military personnel from becoming union members. In the Netherlands, Sweden and West Germany service personnel belong to unions.

American unions, stagnating or shrinking, are understandably tempted by the potential for more members, more power and more dues.

The right to strike is denied to federal government employees but this has not prevented strikes in the U.S. Postal Service.

Increasingly unions — even unions of schoolteachers — thumb their noses at federal court orders. And besides, Big Labor is going to consider an effort to change those no-strike laws at this year's September convention.

So far the Pentagon appears more amused than anxious. A cartoonist has played with the idea of an invading army of union members being turned back by a picket line on the beach.

And if you are distressed by the picture of Mean George Meany negotiating military pay, living conditions, discipline, meals, pensions and fighting conditions, imagine the more ominous situation if a union leader of lesser conscience — lesser patriotism than Meany — were in effect "in command" of our armed forces.

In Britain in '74 the Communist leader of that nation's miners, Mick McGahey, was able to overthrow the Heath government. The Naval Reserve Assn., the Reserve Officers Assn. and the American Legion have said they will fight this plan to unionize our troops but these organizations are likely to let all their steam blow off in the whistle — while the Assn. of Civilian Technicians (ACT) is already preparing to distribute sign-up cards to 700,000 reservists.

And the American Federation of Government Employees (AFGE) will make its move in September. Can you imagine how our nation's potential adversaires must be responding to this national hara-kiri in the United States? We reduce our own nuclear capability in the hope that they will. We expose our own spies. And now we contemplate subjecting our military leaders to the snoopervision of shop stewards with the inevitable potential for mass mutiny. One looks on and wonders.

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

Already our scientists have come up with artificial teeth, heart, kidney and hair transplants, hearing aids, artificial limbs, artificial eyes, and recently it was announced that researchers were experimenting with artificial muscles. In fact because of the wonders of medical science, it's beginning to look as though the millennium is about to arrive. — But I contend we're not quite ready for that thousand years of peace, happiness and prosperity. In order that we may properly enjoy such a golden age; our scientists are first going to have to perfect artificial brain implants to replace the deterioration which has taken place in that area of the human anatomy over the past several decades.

No magic to espionage

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — It is generally agreed here that the French government has been engaged in high espionage concerning the U.S. Department of Transportation. But not to worry, patriots. The spies aren't searching for details of the nation's military road network — they can pick that up at any Texaco service station. What they want is information that may aid their side in the squabble over the landing rights of the Concorde supersonic jetliner.

No doubt surreptitious methods are in use. And possibly some DOT secretary has been deviously seduced by a Parisian James Bond. But all that can be lost in the end is part of the ozone layer; well and maybe somebody's virginity though the odds are against it.

For all of its accumulated power and influence Washington is not a notably glamorous place for spooks. While American intelligence operatives apparently are manipulating foreign governments and plotting the murder of foreign dignitaries all in the name of the motherland, the retaliatory efforts usually involve nothing so juicy. In the capital of capitalism the spies steal more money than secrets.

There are nations that want more than money. The Soviet Union has tripled the size of its intelligence operation in Washington (to perhaps 800 to 1,000 fulltime KGB agents), and fish both publicly and privately for every scrap of information in town. Former State Department officer and intelligence expert John Marks tells of the days he worked for a U.S. senator when "everytime we issued anything on foreign policy there was a knock on our door with a Russian behind it . . . Not only would they read the papers adds Marks in parody, they would ask questions: " 'And vat does da sen-ator mean by dis paragraph, comrade?' "

But though the USSR may still be hoping to bury us with our own data, most foreign spies dig merely for bargaining chips. Marks, who now heads the investigatory Center for National Security, says foreign agents are mostly interested in material their governments can use to advantage in routine political and industrial negotiations. "Everytime we negotiate something internationally we bug the embassies of concerned countries. It's safe to assume they bug us right back."

This means that both friends and enemies bug back. One FBI source believes that the Israelis have a spy network in Washington even greater than that of the Russians. "It's not so formal but it has more eyes and ears." Since most American Jews believe U.S. and Israeli interests are one, says the FBI man, "we have Jewish government workers, Jewish military people and Jewish businessmen who will run off at the mouth with every Israeli officer who invites them out to lunch."

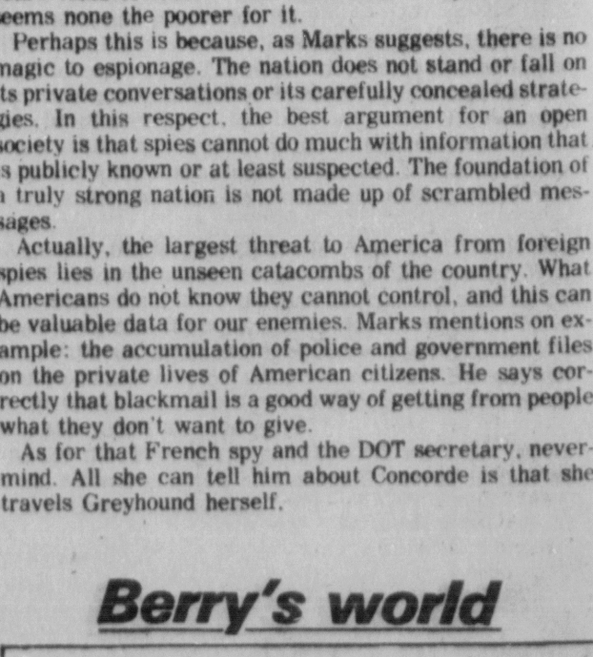

And yet, though secrets are being given as well as taken away here, the national damage seems to be mimimal. Except for the Rosenberg episode concerning nuclear information sent abroad, and the technical sergeants who seem regularly to be discovered selling blueprints to communists, John Marks says lasting wounds are hard to find. In his book "The CIA and the Cult of Intelligence," written with Victor Marchetti, Marks reminds that the Russians bugged the code room in the U.S. Embassy for 12 years (1952 to 1964) — the code room! — yet America seems none the poorer for it.

Perhaps this is because, as Marks suggests, there is no magic to espionage. The nation does not stand or fall on its private conversations or its carefully concealed strategies. In this respect, the best argument for an open society is that spies cannot do much with information that is publicly known or at least suspected. The foundation of a truly strong nation is not made up of scrambled messages.

Actually, the largest threat to America from foreign spies lies in the unseen catacombs of the country. What Americans do not know they cannot control, and this can be valuable data for our enemies. Marks mentions on example: the accumulation of police and government files on the private lives of American citizens. He says correctly that blackmail is a good way of getting from people what they don't want to give.

As for that French spy and the DOT secretary, nevermind. All she can tell him about Concorde is that she travels Greyhound herself.

Dr. Miller

What animal best in packing?

DEAR DR. MILLER: Our family is planning on lots of wilderness trips from here on and are considering a pack animal or two to give us a hand with the gear. Between horses, mules and burros, which would work out better for us, do you think? We do know one from the other on sight, but actually not much more than that about any of them. — N.T.

DEAR N.T.: Each species has its advocates, and rightly so. Your choice would depend to some extent on the terrain to be encountered and the amount of gear to be packed. Burros generally are better for beginners because they are usually easier to pack and handle.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My sister paid to have her dog X-rayed for breast cancer — she got X-rays of the lungs!? Now I happen to know that the breasts of a female dog are not on the chest, but on the stomach. As a matter of fact, that's where the two tumors on her dog are, on the stomach. The X rays missed them completely. Why should she pay for those pictures? — N.E.

DEAR N.E.: X-raying those mammary tumors would provide little in the way of additional information. X rays of the lungs, however, could help to determine whether or not there had been metastasis (spread of the original tumor) to areas within lungs. Since the lungs are the organs most likely to be invaded by a malignant tumor, those lung X rays can help the doctor determine whether or not tumor surgery is justified.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Neither of my snakes is hibernating, but they're not eating as well as they did in the summer even though I'm keeping them warm and moist so they won't dry out. That's not what really worries me, because they're not losing much weight. I'm writing because they've come up with something like blisters just under the scales. They've been by themselves for two years without any problems, so this wouldn't be any kind of a parasite, would it? — G.O.

DEAR G.O.: The answer would have to be supplied by a local herpetological expert, though it's safe to presume parasites aren't the problem. Could be that the high humidity you're so carefully keeping them in has something to do with these blisters. At least, some snakes do develop blisters of this type when kept in overly damp surroundings. They (the blisters) disappear when the humidity drops.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Why, for heaven's sake, does our cat get made at us and claw at the furniture? We treat him like a king. He has no reason to be spiteful. — T. N.

DEAR T. N.: Feline furniture destruction does not necessarily indicate frustration. Clawing furniture is frequently the indoor equivalent of a territorial marking procedure that the cat would use on a tree were he standing near one. Another reason for this activity is to pull away old fragmented claws, exposing the new, sharper versions beneath. Keeping the nails trimmed helps handle the second problem and reduces the damage done when the activity's related to territory.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Normally you're a person of action. Today you could be a shade too lackadaisical about that which should be done.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Others will be relying upon you to hold up your end of bargains. Don't expect them to do your share.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be careful today not to assume someone else's burdens that may be too large for you to manage. Look before you leap.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's one of those days when you could foolishly do something against your better judgment. Be practical in all matters.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Take into careful consideration today views and suggestions of co-workers. They may have something worth listening to.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In business dealings today, don't make more concessions than necessary. Be fair, but don't give away the store.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You may find yourself in a situation today where you'll need to take a firm position. Stick to your guns. Don't be wishy-washy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Though your intentions will be good, it will be easier to make promises today than it will be to fulfill them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This is one of those days where your generous nature could work to your detriment. Curb extravagant impulses.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be satisfied today with small advantages in your dealings with others. If you expect too much, you'll overshoot the mark.

Ann Landers

Rejection of 'old morality'

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please allow me to use your column to address my own children — as well as others who live by "The New Morality"?

Dear Children: We have tried to give you love, understanding, religious convictions, a good education, discipline, everything we thought was important to help you grow up straight and strong. But something went wrong. Why or how, we do not know.

Somewhere along the line you rejected our values and made up your own rules. You decided sex is all right if two people love one another. Your moral code says marriage is not important.

You were of legal age when you made your decision. Your father and I were crushed when you and your beloved decided to live together. We expressed our strong disapproval, but decided to keep our hearts and doors open — hoping and praying that your crooked thinking would straighten out in time.

Now you have brought a child into the world. Again you tell us marriage is not important — that if two people are in love nothing else matters.

We have done our best to understand your point of view. It is so foreign to us. But you are our children and we cannot stop loving you. So we go along. But please don't think because we haven't written you off that we approve of your lifestyle. We are appalled by it. It is heartbreaking to witness our children living in a manner we consider immoral and indecent.

And now to friends and relatives who keep asking why we "condone" your behavior: It is one thing to be heartsick, and we are — and to disapprove, which we do. But to blot out 20 years of our lives as if they never happened is impossible. We cannot pretend our children and our grandchild do not exist. What's more, they are flesh of our flesh. Nothing will ever change that. Of course their lifestyle is upsetting to us, but cutting them out of our lives would be infinitely more painful.

We have been asked what happened. Why did our children turn out this way? We have no answers. We are heartsick and bewildered. We did our best, but apparently it wasn't good enough.

Thank you, Ann dear, for letting us say all this in the paper. I know I speak not only for my husband and myself, but for thousands of other parents as well. There are so many of us — from New York to California. Some see their children, but never talk about them. Others have disowned the rebels because they couldn't tolerate the criticism of their friends.

Everyone's heart aches for the child who goes astray — but each one handles his problems in his own way. Who in heaven's name knows what is right any more? Our daily prayer is "God help us all." — My Name Is Legion

Dear Friend: I do not believe there is a "New Morality." The lifestyle you describe is merely a rejection of the "Old Morality." You have written a beautiful letter. My heart and my hand is with you — and all other parents who share this problem.

CONFIDENTIAL to Should I Tell Her?: The answer is NO. The best way to keep a secret is alone.

Confused about what's right and what's wrong in today's "new morality"? You're not alone. If you want honest, down-to-earth information on your sex questions, read Ann Landers's new booklet, "High School Sex And How To Deal With It — A Guide For Teens And Their Parents." Guinnessitis afflicting all

The disease called Guinnessitis is with us.

Somewhere in this world it has attached itself to a four-man team of pasta lovers trying to consume more than 100 yards of spaghetti in less than 42 seconds.

Somewhere it has struck a man trying to walk more than 8,000 miles in 18 months — backwards.

Somewhere are afflicted twins trying to tip the scales collectively at more than 1300 pounds.

As one of the authors of the Guinness Book of Records pointed out, this publication has become the poor man's marble statute — one of the few places where anyone can become immortal by being the biggest, best, fastest, slowest, tallest, least, last, oldest, or youngest.

My kids haven't been so intrigued with a book since they found "Catcher in the Rye" hidden in the linen closet under the beach towels the year they went to camp.

The other day I heard them talking.

"Hey, we ought to get Mom in the Guinness Book of Records."

"What has she done longer than anyone else?"

"She's been reading 'How To Be Your Own Best Friend' for two years now."

"That's not too long."

"For a book with only 56 pages?"

"I know. She's had diapers in presoak longer than any other woman. Anybody beat 15 years?"

"Is there anything in there for a retrigerator holding the most leftovers?"

"Hey," said one of the swifties, "here's one that's perfect. A Russian woman produced 69 children. That would add up to about two a year."

"Forget it," said another one. "Mom's too conservative. Besides, she's starting too late."

"Not necessarily," said another one flipping through the pages. "It says here the oldest mother gave birth at 57 years, 129 days."

On the other side of the door, I swayed dizzily and leaned against the wall for support. Pictures began to materialize before my eyes — swallowing a diaper pin at 65, having my baby push me around in a stroller at the zoo, napping during the delivery, receiving a pacemaker for Mother's Day, fighting the kid for the baby food, having my own Cub Scout pack adopt me for Christmas, having Captain Kangaroo turn ME on, spanking the baby for coloring on my social security check.

"I got a better one," said one of the kids. "Let's see who has cried any longer than 23 years without stopping."

Coffee not good for patients

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M. D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Your reply to the reader who was taking tranquilizers with coffee brought to mind the experience I had with our son. He was in a mental ward in our city hospital and I visited him everyday.

During the visits, I noticed that patients had free access to coffee. They could drink as much as they wanted at any time. This has always bothered me because it doesn't seem logical for many of them to take daily doses of tranquilizers while at the same time drink coffee all day.

I don't know if all mental wards allow free access to coffee, but I do know this hospital still keeps the coffee pot hot for their patients.

DEAR READER — Because of the caffeine in coffee, I must say that it should be used only for those who want a stimulus, as on awakening, if then. I see no value and lots of harm in permitting or encouraging people to drink lots of coffee containing caffeine, the nerve stimulant, who need tranquilizers in or out of the hospital. In general, anyone who is nervous, anxious or keyed up really does not need a nervous stimulant.

Those wanting more information on coffee can send 50 cents for The Health Letter, Number 1-1, Coffee, Tea, Cola, Cocoa. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for amailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Your answer is badly needed. Reading your advice on hormones, that estrogen is used to control tallness in girls, has prompted me to write quickly for your advice on where to locate the proper specialist or the title the doctor would be listed under.

Our family doctor does not believe in hormones of any kind. He is an old-fashioned, lovable family doctor and we live in a small town.

My daughter is 16 years old and is 5 feet 11 and still growing. She is beautiful and a real brain. But the complex she is getting from her height is making her miserable and me heartsick and guilty I didn't seek outside help in a larger city when she started growing rapidly at age 11.

Tallness is not a factor in our family. I'm 5-feet-5 and my husband is 5-feet-7.

Can estrogen really help at this late stage?

DEAR READER — You want to see an endocrinologist for an evaluation of her status. I don't have your address so I don't know what city to tell you to go to but you can usually get up-to-date help from an endocrinology clinic in any university medical center.

Estrogen causes calcification of the long bones in the legs and stops growth. It will not reverse any bone growth that already exists.

Whether your daughter will benefit from this therapy will depend upon her present endocrine status. If she is already producing lots of estrogen it might not be needed and only an evaluation will tell you. Also such an evaluation will tell you if she has any endocrine changes that might influence her growth pattern that needs correction.

Many tall girls are proud of their height and are not concerned about it. After all, it is better to be tall, bright and good looking than just average or less in all departments.

Every time we think about freak hands we remember one that appeared in the national mixed team championship some 25 or 30 years ago.

Somehow or other every one of the South players bid to four spades on his own, every West player doubled him and every South had no trouble racking up an overtrick.

The bidding in the box was the most common, but some South players saved one round and opened with four spades.

A couple of East players, who believed in results and nothing else, criticized their West partners for doubling four spades, but we can't blame them all. A player who boasts that no one ever makes a doubled contract against him must be missing a lot of nice penalties.

He is something like the man who sits on a park bench. He isn't going to fall down, but he isn't going to get anywhere, either.

Ask the Jacobys

A New Mexico reader asks, "I was in fourth seat, vulnerable against non-vulnerable and picked up ♠ A 5 4 ♥ 2 ♦ 5 ♣ K Q J 9 8 6 5 4.

"The bidding proceeded one spade to my left, pass by my partner, four spades to my right. Should I bid five clubs?"

We certainly would make that call. It might be a losing action, but it is far more likely to prove a winner. Remember, you have to take some chances.

Marmaduke

"You've got to hide that drum . . . Marmaduke gets so upset when his lunch is the least bit late!"

Average auto idle 22 hours

Too much down time, that's what a lot of businessmen complain about. Their expensive equipment is only used maybe eight hours daily when theoretically it could give them almost three times as much service. But that's not the biggest waste in idle machinery, please note. The average automobile just sits there for 22 hours out of every day.

Ice cream flavored with grasshoppers is not dominating the market in Australia, but it can be had there.

COSTUME CHANGES

Q. "Consider the average married woman who works in an office. How many days on the job does she show up without wearing the same outfit a second time?"

A. Five days is typical.

It's not widely understood that a larger proportion of the youngsters in country towns than in the big cities drop out of school.

A young lady named Barbara of Rock Springs, Wyo., inquires, "Is it true that John Dillinger really was a woman named JoAnna? And that the FBI reported her sex wrong because it was embarrassed to have a female on the 10 Most Wanted list?" No, my dear.

KISSING

The eating of snacks can be merely a compulsive oral habit, contends one psychological scholar named Hans Ziegler. And citizens who tend to gain weight because of said affliction, avers he, might do well to replace that habit with some satisfactory substitute such as kissing. Might try that.

Why is a casket used only once? It's because the law most everywhere so requires, no doubt. But there was a time when a casket, known as a death hamper, served repeatedly. The dead were housed therein only temporarily. They were buried in shrouds, nothing more.

Every time the Internal Revenue Service simplifies the tax payment plan, the form gets longer and the instruction book fatter. Why is that?

Calculate 10 per cent of your monthly take-home pay. Multiply that by 18. If your installment indebtedness does not exceed that figure, you're in pretty good shape, financially. Or so contends one money expert.

'A salute to America'

SPEBSQSA does annual musical

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

The Pomona Valley Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America put on a robust and colorful "A Salute to America" Friday and Saturday nights for an appreciative audience that nearly filled Chaffey High School's Spring Auditorium on both nights.

The first part of the program was made up of selections by the chapter's Carousel Chorus, conducted briskly and with feeling by Carl Walters, and by five quartets. The second part was the "Salute," a program presented this year by all 700 chapters of SPEBSQSA. It was alternately stirring, maudlin, exciting, comical, and sentimental. It was also pretty long.

(Barber shop humor can best be characterized by a lone thrown out by someone: "We wanted to sing 'Indian Love Call' but the heat was intense.")

Taking part in Part I were two quartets from the host chapter, the Hilltoppers (George McConnell, Marv Green, Bill Fifer and Gene Thompson), excellent in "Sunrise, Sunset" and "The Old Dominion Line," and the Over Forty Four (Joe Frazier, Norris Felt, Lloyd Felt and Ken Tillmanns), with good renditions of "When Daddy Played" and "Coney Island Washboard Rondelay."

Also joining the festivities was The Sounds of Harmony from the Pomona Valley Chapter of the Sweet Adelines. Doreen Keepers, Charlotte Nelson, Dee DeFrank and Jo McGrath were delightful in "Yeah, Yeah, Yeah," "Do You Remember?" "Mississippi Mud" and others.

San Jose's Our Gang (Scott Davi, Dick King, Chuck Hunter and John Hoff) bounced out in baseball uniforms of the '90s to delight the audience with "My Old Fraternity Pin," "Fulltime Job," "What Happened to Mary?" and "Baptizing the Bear." The San Francisco Storm Door and Whale Oil Company, SPEBSQSA's Far Western champion, showed why it is with "Ten Feet Off the Ground," "Songs of the Good Old Days," a moving "Lost in the Stars" and a richly resonants "Shenandoah." The members are Wayne Mansfield, Don Cubbins, Bill Tieberg and Jim Sherman.

Dick Girvin, a member of the local chapter, was narrator for "Salute," offering a sensitive reading of the story line that linked American music from "God Save the King" to "The Star-Spangled Banner." Selections ranged from "Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes" and "Nearer, My God, to Thee," to "Yankee Doodle," "You're a Grand Old Flag," "Yes Sir, That's My Baby," and of course, "This Is My Country" and "God Bless America."

Taking part in "Salute," with the Carousel Chrous, were the Hilltoppers, the Over Forty Four, the Generation Gap, the Wrought Iron Four and a variety of soloists.

Even with its highs and its lows, it sometimes overly sentimental tone and its somewhat over zealous patriotic fervor, the SPEBSQSA program was a rewarding evening of fine music, nostalgia and excellent singing "Salute" was a worthy salute to the Bicentennial.

OLD OLDTIMERS — Longevity in stardom is illustrated by John Wayne and James Stewart, shown here in a scene from their forthcoming movie, "The Shootist." The pair has a combined total of 88 years in films. Wayne is 68 and Stewart is 67.

Pacific Trio plans concert

The Pacific Art Trio will present a program on the Frankel Festival of Chamber Music Series in Balch Auditorium, Scripps College, at 3 p.m. Sunday. Admission is free.

The trio is composed of pianist Alice Shapiro, violinist Israel Baker and cellist Edgar Lustgarten. They will perform the Hydn Trio in C Major; Beethoven's Trio No. 2 in G Major, and Brahm's Trio in B Major.

The trio's recording of Ives' Piano Trio and Korngold's Piano Trio was released in 1975 by Delos. Huewell Tircuit, San Francisco Chronicle reviewer, wrote "Both these performances are top class — Israel Baker, no less, is the violinist — with high style and technical aplomb. The Ives is a major work, a serious piece in its best recording to date."

A review of the record in "Stereophile" magazine said, "The Korngold Trio is a remarkable work completed when the composer was but 12 years old, yet it is no child's piece, but a work of the genius we've heard about. A mature, Romantic work on any count, the trio here receives a performance of unusual richness. The Pacific Art Trio distinguishes itself with a secure reading made all the more enthralling by a superb recording. The Ives Trio, on the flip side, written at about the same time on this side of the Atlantic, receives its finest recording to date, too."

'Scarlet Letter' filming

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Nathaniel Hawthorne's "The Scarlet Letter," made into movies in 1916 and 1926, will get a new treatment as a two-hour film for NBC Television.

Robert Radnitz will produce the classic as part of the new "American Family Theater" which he will host and make through Radnitz-Mattel Productions.

The 'new look'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The networks are starting to line up their summer shows, hoping for a winner in the winter season. New entry: John Davidson, who will host an hour variety show for NBC.

The show is advertised as a "new look" in musical-variety, with Davidson planning to use person-to-person contact with the audience as he does in his nightclub act.

CIF basketball— bits and pieces

The CIF basketball playoffs are set to begin Friday, and six valley teams will be participating.

Garey and Ganesha will represent the San Antonio League in the 3A playoffs; Alta Loma and Bonita from the Hacienda League and Ontario Christian from the Olympic League will compete in the 2A division and Chaffey, the valley's lone 4A school, will compete in that bracket.

Garey and Alta Loma finished first in their respective leagues and Chaffey finished as co-champion of the Citrus Belt League, but will be designated loop titlist because of beating co-champ San Gorgonio two out of three.

Ganesha and Bonita finished as runnerups and Ontario Christian ended the season in third place.

Two other local teams which finished third — Claremont in the San Antonio League and Ontario in the Hacienda — were omitted from the postseason lineup, but an examination of the playoff brackets makes it clear why they were overlooked.

'Pack tied for third

Claremont actually tied Damien for third in the SAL, but by league rules would have gone to the playoffs if a third berth had been extended the league.

The 32 playoff spots had to be divided among 13 teams in the 3A division, so that after each loop received its automatic two berths their were only six spots left for third-place teams.

Since six teams either finished third in their leagues or tied for second, the CIF did not invite any teams that tied for third and that left the Wolfpack out of the playoffs.

Ontario finished third outright in the Hacienda League with a respectable 9-5 loop record and a 14-11 overall mark.

But after all the 2A champions, runnersup and second-place ties were chosen, only three berths were left for third-place teams and there were three such squads with better records than the Jags'.

Ontario Christian was 9-3 in the Olympic League and 16-6 overall; Yucapipa of the San Andreas League was 10-4 and 20-4, and Northview of the Montview League was 9-5 and 16-10.

Four open at home

Four of the valley's playoff entrants will have home games Friday in first-round action: Chaffey, Garey, Alta Loma and Bonita. Ganesha and Ontario Christian will be on the road.

When two teams are paired after the first round, the team which has played fewer home games to that point in the playoffs shall automatically be the home team.

If both teams have had the same number of home games, the CIF office will flip a coin to determine the host.

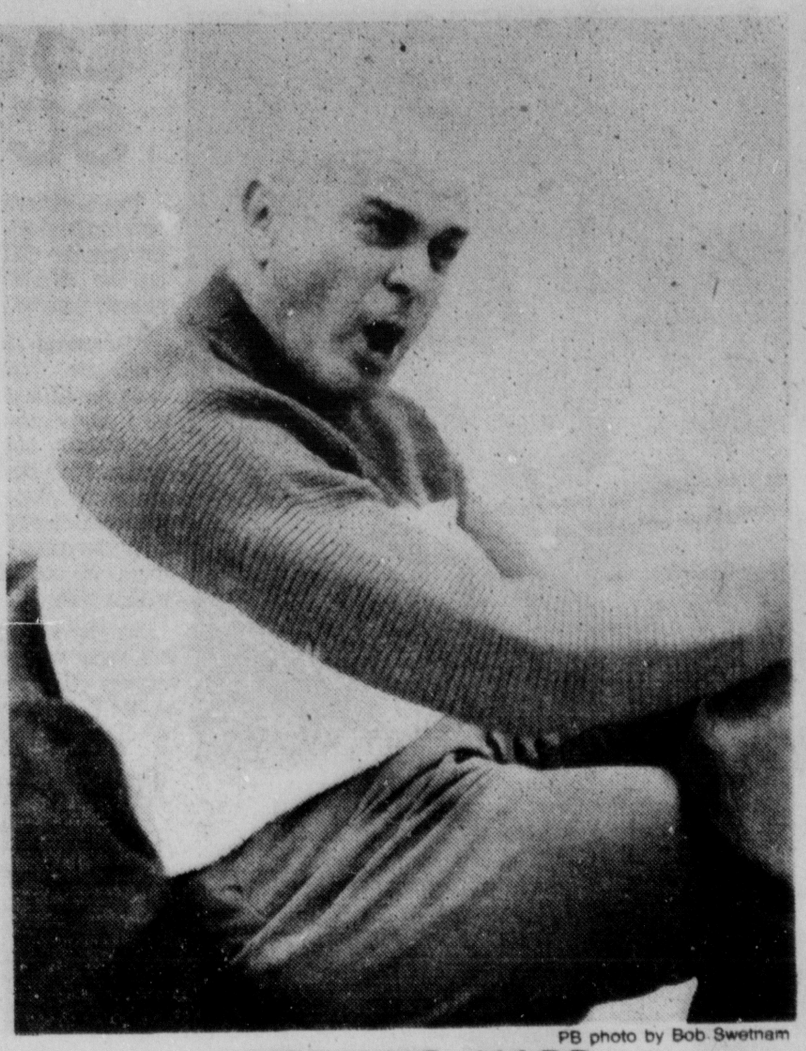

However, in the 4A and 3A divisions, all games after the first round will be played on neutral courts — not in the home team's own gym.

In the 2A and 1A divisions, only the semifinal and championship games must be played on neutral courts.

Teams from all four divisions will play their first three playoff games on Friday, Feb. 27, Tues. Mar. 2 and Friday, Mar. 5.

The semifinal games in the 3A, 2A and 1A divisions will be played Tuesday, Mar. 9, but the 4A semifinals will be held at the Long Beach Arena Friday, Mar. 12.

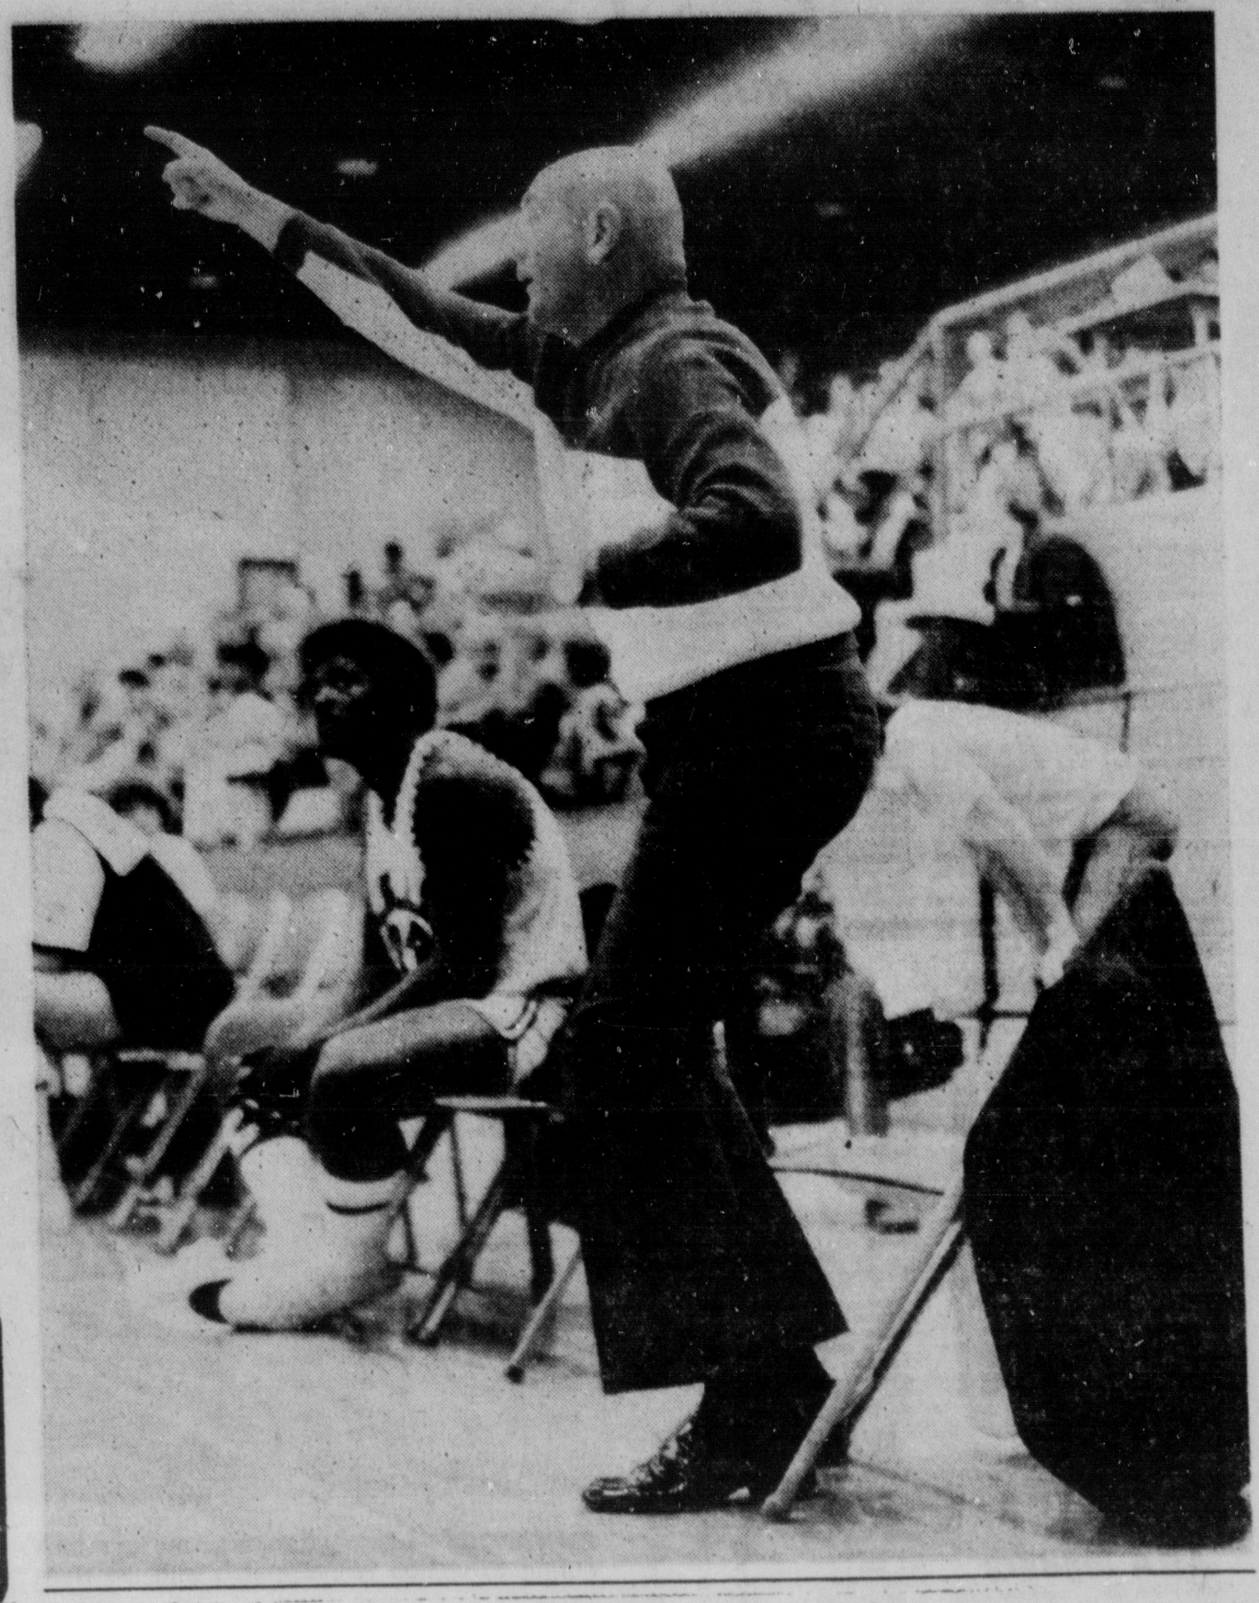

All four championship games will be played at the Long Beach Arena Saturday, Mar. 13.

Giants' sale comes to vote

CHICAGO (AP) — National League baseball owners are holding a special meeting today to determine the fate of the financially troubled San Francisco Giants and discuss possible expansion.

Attending the meeting will be San Francisco Mayor George Moscone who has high hopes that the club will remain in his city.

Seeking to purchase the team for a reported $8 million are financier Robert Lurie and Bob Short, former owner of the Texas Rangers of the American League.

Lurie and Short recently made an 11th-hour bid to try to keep the club in San Francisco and thereby prevented sale of the team to Canadian interests who planned to move the franchise to Toronto.

If the owners approve sale of the team to the Lurie-Short combine, that would leave the Giants and the Oakland A's in the Bay Area which has not been successful in supporting two teams.

This could bring about the possibility of Charles O. Finley selling the A's to Seattle interests, who would much rather have an established club instead of the expansion team recently promised to that city by the American League.

Finley will not move the club to Seattle but he might be tempted to sell the team for an estimated $15 million to entertainer Danny Kaye and businessman Lester Smith, who will run the Seattle franchise. A $35 million suit by Seattle against the American League was dropped after the league voted to expand to Seattle for the 1977 season.

That will leave the American League with an unwieldy 13 teams. The American League, however, has hopes that the National League also will go to 13 teams and thereby open the doors to interleague play which the American League wants. The National League has opposed such action.

Currently, the Giants are owned by the National Exhibition Co. which took over the club from owner Horace Stoneham, who has lost millions in recent years. Representing the National Exhibition Co. at Tuesday's meeting will be attorney James L. Hunt.

Lurie is confident that the owners will approve his purchase of the team but Hunt said some provisions of the offer need clarification.

If the owners turn down the Lurie-Short bid, Toronto will be ready to take over.

Stoneham originally moved the Giants from New York to San Francisco in 1958 at the same time the Dodgers moved from Brooklyn to Los Angeles.

Owners, players still far apart

Baseball rift is wide

NEW YORK (AP) — The rift between the owners and players seems so wide that when the parties meet in Philadelphia on Wednesday they may have to talk from opposite sides of the street.

The city of brotherly love will be an ironic setting for round 21 of the sparring session between the owners' Player Relations Committee and the major league baseball players association after the owners announced on Monday they were delaying the start of spring training.

In explaining the owners' action that stalled spring training and could throw opening day back a couple of weeks, Lee MacPhail, committee member and president of the American League, said: "The idea of playing baseball and negotiating at the same time is not desirable."

Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association, responded by saying that keeping the camps closed was counterproductive. "Baseball may be the first industry which, unthreatened by its employes, shuts itself down," he said.

The rites of spring training normally begin March 1, with pitchers and catchers arriving a week earlier.

The owners blame the players for the stalled negotiations which they say forced the stalled spring training.

"The major difference that blocks agreement is the insistence of the association for a reserve system that would be wholly unworkable," said MacPhail and National League President Chub Feeney in a joint statement.

The players say they merely are asking for the rights contained in their individual contracts.

Arbitrator Peter Seitz ruled last December that the renewal clause was structured so the players could play one season beyond their contractual commitment and then become free agents. Federal Judge John W. Oliver agreed with Seitz, so the owners have moved on to the third base umpire, seeking to have a circuit court panel overturn Seitz' call.

The three-judge tribunal has taken the matter under advisement.

Miller bristles at the owners' suggestion that the players have stalled negotiations.

Reached in Houston, where he is informing players in the area of the status of the negotiations, Miller said the owners were distorting the facts and asking the players to surrender rights that are legally theirs.

"The dispute has been caused by the owners' demand that we retroactively and, in our view illegally, strip the players of rights they now have in their individual player contracts," Miller said.

Miller says the players want to begin spring training and want to open the season April 8, but if the owners think the locked gates will bring the players to their knees, they should be locked up themselves.

"The idea that the players will tremble because thy say spring training won't open March 1 is the most erroneous idea I have come across," he said.

The longer the delay, the larger the prospect of not beginning the season on time, regardless of whether there is a new labor contract.

"We're going to delay spring training until there is an agreement or sufficient progress to justify going forward," Gaherin said.

Were the owners willing to jeopardize the regular season?

"If we have to," MacPhail said, adding that the owners were prepared to wait "as long as it takes to get an agreement."

The members of the Player Relations Committee, who met for a day-long internal session, refused to reveal their thinking as to how long spring training could be delayed without cutting into the regular season.

"How long is a matter of judgment," MacPhail said. "I couldn't pinpoint a specific date.

"You could open exhibition games 10 days after spring training begins, so theoretically you could open the season in 10 days. But I'm not reccommending that. Basically, the problem is with the pitchers."

There is an exhibition game scheduled for March 9, which now is 13 days away and apparently nearing cancelation.

The owners' action reflects their concern that history might repeat itself. In 1972, the players completed the spring training season without a contract, then went on strike for the first two weeks of the regular season, depriving the owners of substantial revenue.

"What happened in 1972 played a part, but it's not the key element," MacPhail said. "We're principally concerned with getting the negotiations over with."

But the negotiations are moving as fast as a home run trot.

"Right now, we're not very close," said Feeney.

Again, while assessing blame, each side points a finger toward the other.

The owners have proposed an "eight-and-one plan," which would allow a player with eight full major league seasons to become a free agent in his 10th season. Gaherin has called this proposal "fair and equitable." The union has not accepted the plan.

"The association's position does not respond to the need for a workable solution to the problem of maintaining competitive balance among the 12 teams in each league and assure team continuity," said MacPhail and Feeney's joint statement.

Miller said he placed some new ideas on the bargaining table Saturday but "they (the owners) made no response. We don't yet have any response and their idea of good faith is then to make this public statement and hold this public press conference and utter one untruth after another."

Garey tickets presale only

All tickets to Garey High's home playoff opener against Antelope Valley Friday night must be purchased prior to the game.

Tickets will be available during school hours in the Administration Office. No passes other than those issued by the CIF will be honored at the door.

O'Brien makes things clear

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry O'Brien, formerly a hard-nosed politician but now basketball's great compromiser, sat in his high-rise office and sought to clear the air about the peace he has brought to the National Basketball Association.

Attempting to make things perfectly clear, O'Brien said:

—Yes, there is a truce in the war between the NBA and its players' union, but no, the league did not send up a white flag.

—Yes, the most difficult problems are now in the backcourt but the game is not really over until the final whistle brings some signatures.

—And no, the truce between the NBA and its union does not necessarily mean the end of hostilities between the NBA and the American Basketball Association.

In a far-reaching interview, NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien talked candidly about the proposed settlement of the Oscar Robertson case, its meaning for both sides and what it means for the future of professional basketball.

Since 1970, when the players' union filed suit in federal court seeking to void the league practices of the college draft, the option clause and compensation, there had been no progress in attempts to settle the case out of court.

Into the breach stepped O'Brien, with his background as confidante to former Presidents Kennedy and Johnson and his belief in the "art of the possible and the art of compromise."

"What we were looking at six months ago," says the first-year commissioner, "was a history of years of false starts in which there had been no meaningful progress. But I couldn't concern myself with the past.

"It was hard for me to conceive that that there wasn't an avenue of agreement to be explored. I had dealt in an arena where there was a lot of give and take and where we were able to make two branches of government happy so I couldn't believe that there was no common ground between the owners and the players."

So he sat down with Larry Fleisher, head of the players association, and successfully opened the lines of communication that had been previously bolted shut.

"When I first took this job," O'Brien said, "everyone told me that there were two truths: the 18 owners could never agree on the time of day and the players association would be totally intransigient against everything.

"I found this to be totally inaccurate on both counts."

Earlier this month, the NBA owners and players approved a proposed settlement of the case, which will, when finalized, effectively short-circuit costly litigation that seemed destined for the Supreme Court.

Larry O'Brien had his settlement, but had he made everybody happy?

He said the players were happy and nearly all of the owners were happy but there were some who suggested the owners had given but not taken.

"My feeling is that this is an equitable resolution, which is shared by the vast majority of owners, but not all of them," O'Brien said.

The proposed agreement includes:

—Abolition, for veterans now signing contracts, of the option clause—the vehicle that bound a player to one team forever. But the players' original team has the right of first refusal, the chance to match another team's best offer;

—A change in the college draft so that a rookie selected has the choice of signing a one-year contract with a one-year option or a multi-year contract with no option;

—And, after the 1980-81 season, the end of compensation, the procedure by which a team losing a player who plays out his option gains something in return.

O'Brien says there was real give and take in the agreement on the option clause and the draft which will work to the benefit of both sides.

"A rookie coming into the league is untested," he said, "but the one-year contract and one-year option gives the team time to test out the player and allows the player to be the best negotiator he can be.

"You see, there's no reason why the player and team can't work out an option agreement or longer contractual period if they want.

"But the draft still will insure continuing competition."

Bill Walton working out

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Bill Walton began working out on a limited basis with the Portland Trail Blazers Monday, and team doctor Robert Cook said the 6-foot 11-inch center may be able to return to National Basketball Association play by late next week.

Walton suffered a stress fracture on his lower right leg several weeks ago in the latest of a string of injuries that has plagued the former UCLA All-American's short professional career.

The cast was removed over the weekend and has been replaced by a special brace which allows Walton to do some running.

Portland is in the cellar of the Pacific Division of the National Basketball Association with a 25-34 record. In games in which Walton has played, Portland has won 18 and lost 19. The Blazers are 7-15 without the big center.

ON TARGET — Jimmy Connors runs for return during exhibition tennis match with Ilie Nastase. Connors is at his best when having fun and has most fun in exhibitions.

J.C. loves exhibitions

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Jimmy Connors is at his best when he's having fun—and he has the most fun when he's playing exhibition matches like the upcoming "Championship of the World" in Las Vegas, Nev.

The match against Manuel Orantes of Spain, who upset young Jim in the U.S. Open at Forest Hills last summer, is being billed by CBS as a grudge match between the two tennis masters.

But is it really?

When Connors knocked off Rod Laver about a year ago in another Caesar's Palace spectacular sponsored by the match-making television network, the 23-year-old left-hander from Belleville, Ill., was at his prime.

And he still had that special touch when he whipped Australian John Newcombe, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4, last April in another televised Championship of the World.

And since losing his Wimbledon singles title this past summer to Arthur Ashe and then dropping the U.S. Open crown to Orantes, Connors' tennis game has been sputtering.

Orantes, likewise, has not continued his string of victories that began in Indianapolis with an upset win over Guillermo Vilas of Argentina in the U.S. Clay Courts and ended with titles at Toronto and Forest Hills.

Connors, who is at his best on grass and other fast surfaces, lost Sunday to his best friend— Romania's Ilie Nastase—in the finals of the U.S. Indoor Championships at Salisbury, Md.

That same night, though, the bad-boy-turned-nice-guy took on Nastase again in an exhibition match here and beat his buddy, 6-4, 6-1. The difference the second time around was that Connors behaved like Jimmy Connors and abandonded his new image.

Connors' return of service, considered by many experts the best in the pro tennis, was awesome. He banged back Nastase's best offerings with abandon and put his pal on the defensive.

Exhibition matches are exhibition matches and tournaments are tournaments, but on Sunday night Connors displayed the kind of tennis that made him famous. And his antics—the naughty gestures and well-timed babble — delighted the crowd.

"I'm enjoying what I'm doing," Connors told The Associated Press. "Playing tennis has been my life. But I can't play tennis all my life.

"Something new is going to have to come up to give me a little more incentive for life. not only my tennis but other things. The one thing in tennis I haven't done is win the Davis Cup for the United States, so maybe I'll play Davis Cup again."

Connors, who mentioned the word "marriage" and the quickly backtracked, conceded that his tennis hasn't been up to par in recent months. But the same goes for Orantes, he said.

"He has played a few tournaments," Connors began. "But he hasn't been doing much to promote the match, play-wise. Since Forest Hills, he hasn't done anything, really. And I've been playing pretty good."

Whether he's playing "pretty good" is open to debate, but one thing is sure: he's downplaying one of the most important aspects of his match with Orantes.

"Whether it's indoors or not, it's all the same," Connors claims. "Everybody plays the same amount indoors as outdoors, on grass or on clay. Sure, I think he's better on clay. But I think I'm better on grass."

Umpiring classes start in Pomona

Classes for aspiring umpires in youth baseball and adult softball will begin Thursday in the Emerson Junior High School Cafetorium at 7:30 p.m.

Both men and women are encouraged to attend. Classes are planned on Thursdays through April 8.

The class is free to those interested in learning baseball and softball rules. Persons who wish to be certified as an official must pay a $6 fee on March 4. This will cover the cost of the rule books and test.

Those completing the class are given the opportunity of joining the Pomona Valley Umpire's Association and officiating games this spring and summer for pay. Rates paid range from $6 to $12 per game depending on the caliber.

The umpires school is a co-operative effort of the Pomona Park and Recreation Departments, Pomona Baseball Commission and Umpire's Association.

Pomonan places 2nd

SAN DIEGO — Stan Whitley, a Pomona resident and a teacher at Ramona Intermediate School in La Verne, placed second in the long jump at the San Diego Indoor Invitational Track Meet at the Sports Arena Saturday.

Whitley jumped 25 feet, 3½ inches in the open long jump. The event was won by Arnie Robinson with a leap of 25-11. Randy Williams placed third.

Locals end SCIAC play

The Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (SCIAC) winds up the 1976-76 basketball season tonight.

Claremont-Mudd (2-9) could tie Pomona-Pitzer (3-8) for fifth place with a win over the visiting Sagehens tonight. La Verne, (5-6) having clinched fourth place, takes on hapless Caltech (0-11). The Leos can end up at the .500 mark in conference play with a win.

But the big game is at Redlands where the conference championship will be decided. Depending on the outcome, it will either be a three-way tie or an outright title for the Bulldogs.

If visiting Occidental (9-12) is victorious, Oxy, Redlands and Whittier all wind up 10-2 and co-champions unless a playoff is held. But with the NAIA District Playoffs beginning Thursday, that hardly seems possible.

If Redlands (10-1) wins tonight, the Bulldogs are the champs. Oxy and Whittier would finish in a tie for second. Whittier (10-2) completed its season Saturday.

Tim Gillette of La Verne will wind up a fine season and his career at La Verne tonight. The senior center was the leading rebounder and second highest scorer going into last week's games.

Gillette was averaging 11.7 rebounds and 16.2 points-per-game through the first eight games. Guard Mike Winze (15.2) and C-M guard Bob Smith (14.9) were third and fourth respectively behind Oxy's Steve Snodgrass (19.8).

Stu DuVall, C-M's sophomore center is second in the conference in rebounds with an average of 9.1 per game and ninth in scoring (13.1).

Occidental is the best shooting team (53.9 percent). Whittier (51.2) is second and Redlands (48.8) is third.

Bruin coach reinstated

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An arbitrator has recommended the reinstatement of UCLA women's track team Coach Chuck Debus, suspended last October on charges of alleged improper conduct.

The school agreed, it was learned Monday, to accept the ruling as well as the recommendations that Debus be paid for the full school year, be placed on leave of absence for the rest of the year and be given proper notice if he is not to be rehired next year.

The exact nature of the charges against Debus were never disclosed.

Goolagong beats Lea Antonoplis

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Top-seeded Evonne Goolagong came off a two-week layoff Monday night to crush Leah Antonoplis, 6-3, 7-4, in the opening round of a women's professional tennis tournament here.

It was the Australian star's 11th straight match victory.

Miss Antonoplis, of Glendora, Calif., double-faulted at game point while leading 2-1 in the first set. Miss Goolagong came back to win the next four games to capture that set and jumped ahead 5-2 in the second set.

Second-seeded Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, expected to be Miss Goolagong's chief challenger, drew a bye and will not see action until Tuesday night. She'll meet fellow Floridian Wendy Overton.

Tour veteran Valerie Ziegenfuss of Los Angeles was knocked off the main tour Monday when she lost 7-5, 6-4 to Leslie Hunt of Australia. A tour official said Miss Ziegenfuss would have to enter "futures" tournaments to regain a spot on the tour.

Kerry Melville Reid of Greenville, S.C. won her match by default against Roberta Starke of Jacksonville, Fla, when Miss Starke, suffering from the flu, retired while trailing, 4-2.

In other matches, Glynis Coles of Great Britain downed Iris Riedel of West Germany, 6-3, 6-1; Ruta Gerulaitis of New York stopped Raynie Fox of Miami, 6-1, 1-6, 7-6; Mimi Jausovec of Yugoslavia beat Ely Vessies of Holland, 6-1, 3-6, 6-1, and Francoise Durr of France eliminated Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovia, 7-6, 1-6, 6-4.

The tourament is part of the Virginia Slims circuit.

Elks sponsor charity cage

The Johnny Brown All-Stars are coming to Pomona Saturday evening. The touring group will play a basketball game at Garey High School at 8 p.m. against the General Dynamic All-Stars.

Pomona Elks Lodge 789 is sponsoring the event as a fund raising activity. Proceeds will go to Elks Charities, which includes Cerebral Palsy, scholarship awards, youth team sponsorship and Christmas Charity baskets.

Brown, a singer-comedian, has appeared on The Rookies, Night Gallery, Laugh In and many other top shows. He has his own production company and does a great deal of charity and youth work.

Sports personalities and actors appearing with Brown's club include: Beau Bridges, actor; Joe Campanella, from the "Bold Ones"; Bernie Casey, former Rams; Tommy Davis, professional baseball; Doug Johnson, "Adam 12"; Rudy LaRusso, ex-Laker; Orlando Lee, ex-Cal State L.A. All-American; Kent McCord, star of "Adam 12"; John Rambo, Olympic Bronze Medal winner; Lance Rentzel, ex-Ram; Richard Roundtree, "Shaft"; Mike Warren, ex-UCLA All-American; and Cliff Branlon, Ex-UCLA All-American.

The General Dynamics team has been selected from the company's employees league. They will be coached by Omer Simeon and Bob Ulloa.

Espiaus and Brooklyn Dodgers, two teams from the Pomona Park and Recreation Department, Adult Civic League, will play a pre-liminary game at 6 p.m.

Tickets are on sale at the door for $1.50 per person.

Sports briefs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pepperdine's Ollie Matson Jr. and UCLA's Ralph Drollinger were named basketball Players of the Week Monday by the Southern California Broadcasters Association.

Drollinger, a 7-foot-1 center for the Bruins, was selected for his clutch steal and basket in the final moments of UCLA's 78-69 victory over Oregon State Thursday night. Drollinger also hit six pressure free throws and scored 14 points in 13 minutes in that game.

Matson, a forward for the Waves, scored 25 points in his team's 83-66 victory Friday over Nevada-Reno, then pumped in 26 the following night in the Waves' 112-76 triumph over St. Mary's. The two victories helped the Waves move into a tie for the West Coast Athletic Conference lead with San Francisco.

ROTONDA, Fla. (AP) — Billiard champion Jean Balukas bowled a 192 game Monday night to move into a tie with former speed skater Anne Henning for the lead in the $69,000 Women's Superstars competition.

Sixteen-year-old Miss Balukas won the tennis event earlier in the competition, stopping volleyball player Annedore Richter 6-1 in the finals.

ALORTON, Ill. (AP) — A fire raced through a wooden horse barn at Cahokia Downs Race Track today, with unconfirmed reports that a large number of horses may have perished in the blaze.

Track officials declined immediate comment, but said there were "a few horses" killed in the morning blaze at Barn F, one of nine barns at the harness racing track where the racing season is currently underway.

WHITTIER, Calif. (AP) — USC won the second annual California State-Los Angeles Golf Invitational on Monday with a 603 total, seven shots ahead of UC Irvine.

One stroke further back at 611 was Long Beach State. Northridge State finished with 612 and UCLA came in fifth at 613. The host team finished sixth at 633 on the California Country Club course.

Long Beach State freshman Mark O'Meara took the individual title with a two-under-par total of 142.

VILLANOVA, Pa. (AP) — Mary Scharff scored 16 points, and Immaculate College beat Delta State, the defending national champions, 64-53 Monday night to snap the Lady Statesmen's winning streak at 51 games in women's college basketball.

MONTREAL (AP) — Defenseman Bob Dailey of the Vancouver Canucks was suspended for two games by the National Hockey League Monday following an incident last Wednesday in a game between the Canucks and the Philadelphia Flyers.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — San Jose State guard Ken Mickey, who scored 59 points in three games last week, was selected Monday as the Pacific Coast Athletic Association's basketball Player of the Week.

In the Stretch

CLEAN SWEEP — Feminine driver Bea Farber moves into Los Alamitos this week, bedding down her pacing whiz Easy Irv, who is fresh from setting a 1976 seasonal mark of 1:59 1/5. That clocking clipped two ticks off the Bay Meadows track mark but more importantly, it gives Bea a clean sweep of the world's competitive records for lady drivers.

"Irving", as Bea fondly refers to her speedy son of Easy Adios, previously hauled her to a mark for competition on a half-mile track, when they took a heat at Jackson, Mich. in 2:00 flat. Then last spring, they added a five-eighths world's mark to the roster with a 1:58 3/5 mile at Los Al.

The Bay Meadows win puts Bea in the record book in mile competition, too. Ironically, she already held that standard, at 1:59 3/5, but the USTA record book still listed June Dillman and Red Dominion, winners in 1:59 4/5, as the best ever. There's no question now. The mark belongs to Bea and Irving.

RAILBIRDS ON THE WING — Hollywood Park's popular Railbird Club begins its 15th season of operation Mar. 24. Members, by making special reservations through the Club office, will travel to Santa Anita for an annual day of racing at the Arcadia emporium.

The club also holds two "days" during the Hollypark season, which this year will begin Apr. 9. Members are entitled to a pair of Club House ducats free of charge on those afternoons. One will spotlight the Railbird Handicap, a fixture on the Inglewood stakes roster.

Interested turf fans may join the Railbird Club by writing Hollywood Park, Box 369, Inglewood, 90306. It's a unique organization. No dues, no meetings and no long-winded speeches by the president. Just lots of fun and an insight into the latest in happenings on the race track through regular mailings of the Railbird news.

MORE GOOD NEWS — The rousing victory by Derby hope Thermal Energy in the San Vicente Stakes last week at Santa Anita was a big plus for owner E.E. (Buddy) Fogelson and trainer Charlie Whittingham in more ways than the large end of the $33,700 pot.

Thermal Energy is a son of horse of the year Ack Ack, whose pink slip is shared by Messrs. Fogelson and Whittingham. Thus any success the speedy sophomore registers also is a plus for his sire.

But the Thermal Energy team received some other good news this week. Another Ack Ack offspring, named Ack Ack Man, showed good form in speeding to a length and one-half victory in his racing debut down the straightaway at the Fair Grounds in New Orleans.

Ack Ack Man races in the colors of Green Thumb Stable, nom de course for Californian Earl Scheib, the auto paint magnate, and should he continue to show good form, there is a possibility that such rich tests as the estimated $150,000 Hollywood Juvenile Championship will entice Scheib to bring his two-year-old to California.

DOUBLE VISION — Robert P. Levy, president of Atlantic City Race Course is busy converting his New Jersey oval to a night racing operation. In a last gasp move to survive on the overcrowded eastern racing calendar, Atlantic City will conduct thoroughbred racing under the arcs from June 14 through Aug. 30, the first-ever night presentation at a major oval for an extended period.

Levy, however, also is keeping one eye focused on the exploits of the family's talented three-year-old, Gay Jitterbug. Racing in the Jaclyn Stable colors of Dr. Leon Levy, Bob's dad and the long-time leader in the communications field, Gay Jitterbug isn't nominated to the coveted Flamingo and trainer Jimmy Croll says he isn't interested in Supplementing at a cost of $5,000.

But Gay Jitterbug is named to the $200,000 Hollywood Derby. And don't be surprised if the gelded son of Northern Dancer ships West for the rich Apr. 17 classic.

BUMP AND RUN — Dan Lasater, the nation's leading owner the past several years, presently has the bulk of his active stable at Oaklawn Park, the Arkansas hoss emporium that surprisingly ranks as one of the sport's top crowd getters.

Lasater recently sent out his one-time stakes runner, Game Lad, for a sprint try, the comebacking veteran carrying a $7,500 claiming tag. Under the skillful handling of Jorge Tejeira, Game Lad got to the wire first with a half-length to spare. But he was disqualified for interference in the stretch.

Runner-up Lentos was moved up from the place position and returned a lusty $93 for $2. But wasn't a total loss. Lasater picked up $7,500 when Game Lad was haltered and in a sense, used the funds to add winner Lentos to his string via the claim route.

The Saturday card was witnessed by more than 31,000, a figure topped only by the 35,000-plus who turned out at Santa Anita. Hialeah drew slightly more than 20,000 and Aqueduct hosted 26,800 the same afternoon.

NCAA hits Minnesota

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota's Jim Dutcher, who began coaching the Gophers this year under the cloud of an NCAA investigation, says he expects a three-year probation as partial punishment for violations which occurred under his predecessor.

"We're expecting the worst and hoping for the best," said Dutcher Monday after the university was notified of its penalties by the NCAA. "There isn't much we can do about it now."

The penalties won't be made public until university officials decide whether to appeal, university President C. Peter Magrath said Monday after receiving the 24-page NCAA report on the penalties.

Dutcher said he has told potential recruits that he expects to receive three years probation and have his maximum number of six scholarships a year reduced to three.

"It's not discouraging because I knew it when I took the job," said Dutcher. "I'll be glad to get it all behind us."

Dutcher, a former assistant coach at Michigan, was hired several weeks after Musselman resigned. Even his selection became controversial when a Minnesota state civil rights official charged that racial bias played a part in the screening process.

Dutcher has refused to comment on the content of the infractions.

"We've got to tell them (potential recruits) the worst," said assistant coach Larry Gillman. "We really think we'll get three years beginning next year."

The NCAA and the university have substantiated 128 violations committed during the four-year reign of former Coach Bill Musselman. The allegations include giving athletes money, use of cars and plane tickets.

Musselman, 35, left Minnesota for a coaching job in the American Basketball Association July 28, five days after university officials publicly announced the school's problems with the NCAA. He had three years left on his contract at Minnesota when he took the job with the now-defunct San Diego Sails, but the university instituted no legal action aimed at holding Musselman to his contract.

Magrath said the penalties would not be announced until a misunderstanding in the report is clarified.

That question is believed to center on the activities of assistant coach Jimmie Williams, who is named on at least one documented NCAA violation.

The NCAA could ask for the dismissal of Williams or, more likely, limit his recruiting activities.

There also is some question whether star sophomore center Michael Thompson is included in the sanctions.

The NCAA ordered Minnesota to suspend Thompson last month because he had sold two complimentary tickets at more than their face value during his freshman year.

The suspension, which would have lasted the final 14 games of the present season, was contested in the courts by Thompson. He missed one game before coming back to the Gopher lineup under a court injunction.

Arizona nips Cal Poly, 4-3

TUCSON, Ariz. — Arizona scored in the bottom of the ninth inning to edge touring Cal Poly, 4-3, in college baseball here Monday afternoon.

Second baseman Les Pearsey singled to left field to score Ken Bolek, who drew a walk and stole second, for the winning run for Arizona, 8-1 for the season.

Poly righthander Bruce MacPherson suffered his second loss of the season despite holding the Wildcats to seven hits. He struck out eight and walked six.

Dennis Sherow tied the game at 3-3 for Poly with a two-run homer in the top of the fifth inning. The Broncs' first tally was in the fourth when Ray Pekarcik singled to score Kevin Jenkins.

Pete Van Horne homered for Arizona in the second and the Wildcats added two more in the fourth thanks to back-to-back doubles by Ron Hassey and Steve Powers.

Righthander Chuck Zopfi pitched 4 2/3 innings without allowing a run to pick up the victory in relief.

Poly, 2-7, will conclude its three-day stay here today and Wednesday before returning home to host USC Friday.

New league for Detroit?

DETROIT (AP) — The University of Detroit, a basketball independent since 1957, has applied for membership in the Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference, Athletic Director Bob Calihan said Monday.

The league, established last summer, is composed of Louisville, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Memphis State, Georgia Tech and Tulane.

"With the current tournament and television situation in college basketball, it is essential that independents affiliate with conferences," Calihan said.

The MCAC will consider expansion at its tournament March 3-5, in Louisville, Calihan said. Other schools applying for membership are Oral Roberts, Florida State, Jacksonville, New Orleans, South Alabama, Dayton and Bradley.

Relaxed Hoosiers near Big 10 crown

By Associated Press

Quinn Buckner is learning to relax and enjoy it.

"Coach Bobby Knight told us before the game he wanted us to be more relaxed," the 6-foot-3 senior guard said Monday night after leading unbeaten, top-ranked Indiana to a 101-81 rout of Iowa. "He told us he wanted more concentration about what was going on around us."

Buckner relaxed, concentrated—and came up with his best game of the season, scoring 24 points as the Hoosiers posted their 54th consecutive regular-season victory and clinched a share of the Big Ten title.

Indiana, 24-0, was the only Top Ten team to play Monday night. No. 11 Tennessee beat Louisiana State 80-71, No. 13 Michigan defeated Illinois 90-75, No. 14 St. John's topped Holy Cross 71-60 and No. 18 Cincinnati beat West Virginia 66-56.

"Buckner did a tremendous job by keeping himself out of foul trouble," said Knight. "His personal discipline on defense was as good as it has been since he's been here.

"Buckner has worked hard on his shooting and perseverance, but what pleased me the most was his staying out of foul trouble. He can contribute to this team without scoring a lot."

The Hoosiers' firepower was quite evident against Iowa. All five Indiana starters scored in double figures as the Hoosiers hit 44 of 79 shots from the field to surpass 100 points for the fourth time this season. Center Kent Benson had 15 points, Scott May and Bobby Wilkerson 14 each and Tom Abernethy 12.

"They're going to beat anyone if they shoot that well," Iowa Coach Lute Olson said. "They played super. Buckner hasn't been hitting, but here he was bombing all his shots. The guy had been shooting 37 per cent."

Buckner was a starting defensive back on Indiana's football team as a freshman, but gave up football to concentrate on basketball. He is considered a pro prospect in both sports.

He scored the first basket of the game. His second put the Hoosiers ahead to stay 6-5, and his next two yielded a 23-13 lead, and the Hawkeyes never threatened.

Scott Thompson topped Iowa with 22 points.

Ernie Grunfeld and Bernard King combined for 50 points in Tennessee's triumph. Grunfeld scored 19 of his 26 points in the first half, when the Vols hit a sizzling 61.6 per cent of their shots from the field.

Tennessee, 12-3 in the Southeastern Conference, meets first-place Alabama, 12-2, on Saturday.

John Robinson and Steve Grote hit their season highs with 24 and 20 points, respectively, to lead Michigan past Illinois. The Wolverines jumped out in front 17-1, even though their coach, Johnny Orr, was home with the flu.

St. John's and Cincinnati both started slowly but overcame early deficits to win.

In other major games, Michigan State beat Purdue 89-76 behind Terry Furlow's 29 points and Minnesota defeated Ohio State 89-73 in the Big Ten; Georgia edged Mississippi 70-68, Kentucky beat Auburn 93-82 and Vanderbilt nipped Florida 71-67 in Southeastern Conference action, and South Carolina topped Georgia Tech 63-55.

Cav swimmers sixth in meet

Montclair High's varsity swim team placed sixth among 23 schools at the Rubidoux Invitational Meet on Saturday while the Cavaliers frosh-soph swimmers placed 15th.

Leading the way for the varsity was Mike Harbottle with two first place medals. His first in the 50 freestyle set a Montclair record at 22.7. A time of 51.0 in the 100 freestyle gave Harbottle his other first place finish. Matt Tedder was among the other MHS varsity medalists with a sixth place in the 100 breaststroke in a time of 1:08.0.

Medals went to Mark Kubeja, Scott Whipp, Matt Tedder, and Harbottle for their fifth place finish in the varsity 200 medley relay. Placing ninth in the 400 freestyle relay were Ron Hartman, Ken Kelch, Fred Soelter, and Sam Nisbett.

Tom Maples was the leading swimmer for the frosh-soph team with a seventh place medal in the 100 butterfly. Maples' time was 1:04.0. He also placed with a 2:31.6 in the 200 individual medley for an eighth place finish. Other frosh-soph swimmers to place included Jim Rankin, Wyatt Loggins, Maples, and Jeff Palmer with a ninth in the 200 Medley Relay. Finalists with an 11th place in the 400 Freestyle Relay were Randy Fishbaugh, Lori Fry, Chuck Saucer, and Matt Munton.

Montclair's next meet is today at home with Chaffey. Wednesday, the Cavaliers continue San Antonio League action against Alta Loma in the Alta Loma pool at 3:15 P.M.

Courier. The fun truck that's Ford-tough.

It's California's kind of wheels.

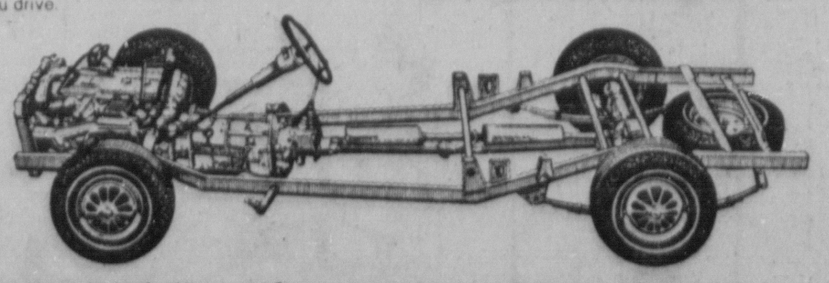

Drive it, you'll like it.
Courier owners talk about the way it drives. The way it economizes. And the way it's built. Ford test engineers really put this little import through the wringer before they OK'd it to carry the Ford name.

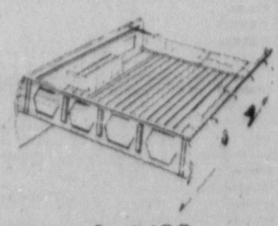

Good news under the hood.
For all of Courier's gutsiness, gas mileage is great. EPA estimates are 25 mpg highway, 19 mpg city. Your mileage may vary, of course, depending on your truck's condition, optional equipment, and how and where you drive.

Courier: Tough down under.
Give Courier a good going under and you'll know why it feels so solid on the road and off. • The frame has box-section rails with 7 (count 'em, 7) crossmembers. • Up front, there's independent suspension with big coil springs and stabilizer bar. • In back, long 6-leaf springs. • The 1800-cc. 4-cylinder engine has modern overhead-cam design with 5 main bearings for rigidity and strength. Courier's known as the gutsy little import. This is where it gets its guts.

Room for 1,400.
Payload or people, you can really pile it on—Courier's rated for a total of 1,400 pounds. The rugged box is a generous 74.5 inches long.

Room for you.
It's room with a view, insulated for quiet, handsomely furnished. The seat has thick foam padding under the smart upholstery.

The moose is the largest deer in the world. Its name comes from an American Indian word which literally means "eats off," from the animal's habit of stripping bark and branches off trees.

A moose is a creature of the forested parts of northern North America and Europe. It feeds chiefly on the leaves, twigs and bark of trees. Travelers in the northern forests occasionally see a moose standing by the roadside.

Moose are easy to identify by their long, knobby legs and high shoulders that look like a hump. A hairy fold of skin hangs under the throat of the bull (male). The largest moose live in Alaska. A fully grown Alaskan bull moose may stand 7 feet at the shoulders, weigh 1,500 pounds or more and carry a six-foot span of antlers (horns), but he can move through the dense forest silently.

Outside of America, these animals are called elk. But the American elk is different. Its correct name is "wapiti."

Fractometer Yields Secrets Of Tobacco Flavor.

Researchers use smoke analysis to isolate key flavor ingredients of tobacco–low tar MERIT with 'Enriched Flavor'™ achieved.

Not all ingredients of tobacco in cigarette smoke deliver the same amount of taste.

Or tar.

That's what researchers at Philip Morris discovered using an analytical fractometer to "crack" cigarette smoke down into its various parts.

Relying on this very sensitive, very special instrument, over 2000 separate ingredients were isolated and analyzed.

What this analysis revealed was startling:

There are ingredients in cigarette smoke—key flavor-rich ingredients—that deliver taste way out of proportion to tar.

Ingredients that, when packed into a tobacco blend, result in a cigarette that delivers extraordinary flavor without the usual corresponding increase in tar.

The discovery is called 'Enriched Flavor'. It comes in the tobacco of a remarkable new cigarette: MERIT.

'Enriched Flavor' is extra flavor. Natural flavor. Flavor that can't burn out, can't fade out, can't do anything but come through for you.

In fact, MERIT delivers the flavor of cigarettes having more tar.

Up to 60% more tar.

Yet MERIT has only 9 mg. of tar. Lower than 98% of all cigarettes being sold today.

If you're looking to become a low tar smoker, or don't particularly enjoy the taste of the low tar brand you smoke now—you'll be interested.

9 mg. "tar" 0.7 mg. nicotine

MERIT and MERIT MENTHOL

Taste-Tested By People Like You

9 mg. tar MERIT was taste-tested against five current leading low tar brands ranging from 11 mg. to 15 mg. tar.

Thousands of filter smokers were involved, smokers like yourself, tested at home.*

The results were conclusive:

Even if the cigarette tested had 60% more tar than MERIT, a significant majority of all smokers tested reported new 'Enriched Flavor' MERIT delivered more taste.

Repeat: delivered more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, 9 mg. tar MERIT MENTHOL performed strongly too, delivering as much—or more— taste than the higher tar brands tested.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough. Now you've got the cigarette.

MERIT. Incredible smoking pleasure at one of the lowest tar levels in smoking today—only 9 mg. tar.
